Report Fourth Pueblo Parley

Poverty Revamp Begins

Circuit Judge Marshall Craig was nominated by petition as a board member from Scott county to the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, currently in the process of reorganizing.

Donald Fulton, principal of Lincoln School and former DAEOC board member from Scott county, called a meeting of interested Sikeston residents Tuesday night at Sikeston High School.

He explained that since the General Electric consulting firm completed a study of the DAEOC operations in Portageville it has set new rules for electing board members. The old board has been dissolved.

DAEOC was the co-ordinating headquarter for Office of Economic Opportunity antipoverty program in six Bootheel counties.

In the past, each of the six county OEO boards elected four members to DAEOC.

Gross dissatisfaction developed in the administration of the program and federal funding of the Neighborhood Service Centers, the focal point of carrying out the antipoverty programs, resulted.

Funding was cut as of Dec. 31, and most of the NSCs in the six counties of Scott, New Madrid, Mississippi, Stoddard, Pemiscot and Dunklin have closed. A few have remained open and are conducting some programs with volunteer help. The center in Sikeston has closed.

Before the NSCs and the antipoverty programs can be refunded, the election of new board members to DAEOC is required, Fulton said.

The study group set the following guidelines for elections to the board. It will consist of not less than 24 nor more than 30 members.

Six board members shall be appointed by the county court, one from each county. The petition started last night recommended Craig be appointed by the Scott county court.

Three other board members shall be appointed by the Missouri Welfare Department, the Department of Education, and the State Employment Service. Each agency shall appoint one board member.

Nine other board members shall be elected by persons in the poverty groups of the counties by Democratic process. New Madrid, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties will each select two board members elected by poor persons, while Scott, Mississippi and Stoddard counties will each elect one.

The counties electing two poverty representatives were determined to have the greatest concentrations of poverty in the area, Fulton said.

Election places have not been decided yet, but a primary type of election will be held Feb. 15, with the final election to be held March 4.

In addition to the nine board members to be elected by persons in the poverty grouping and the nine members to be appointed by the county courts and the state agencies, the board will consist of at least six other members to be elected by the above 18.

These other six members are to be representatives of civic, business or professional organizations.

Fulton urged persons attending the meeting to organize a committee to nominate a person from Sikeston to be considered by the 18 members in March. The Rev. Joseph Wagner, pastor of the First Methodist Church, and Fred Steward Jr. said they would form a committee and contact civic groups here for a nominee.

The DAEOC board when it is reorganized may consist of 30 members. Six board slots will be open to allow for any group who feels they are not properly represented to petition the board for representatives.

Eddie Schrader

New Scout Post for Schader

Eddie R. Schrader, Okeechobee district Boy Scout executive, will assume the position of the Osage district scout executive in Poplar Bluff March 1.

The announcement was made by Joe Welborn, Bloomfield, president of the Southeast Missouri Council, and Richard Ray, Cape Girardeau, Scout executive of the council.

The Osage district includes Butler, Wayne, Carter and Ripley counties. The district has 895 Scouts including Cubs, Boy Scouts and Explorers.

Schrader, 25, was born and reared in Sikeston. He graduated from high school in 1959. He worked for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Bank of Sikeston, and the post office, before he became the Scout executive of the Okeechobee District in May of 1965.

He worked in the small loan department and as a teller at the Bank of Sikeston from May of 1963 until June of 1964. He then worked for the post office until he took the Scout executive job.

Since he assumed his present position, the Scout membership in the Okeechobee district has increased from 1,071 boys to 1,470. The number of Cub packs, Scout troops and Explorer posts have increased from 52 to 66. An outstanding program has been provided the boys and units during this period, Ray said.

As a volunteer scouter Schrader served in leadership capacities including chairman of district activities and organization and extension chairman.

Schrader is married to the former Janice K. Walker. They live at 626 Lanning. They have two children: Tresa Kay, 5, and Bryan, 1. They are members of the Lutheran Church. He is a member of the Rotary club.

The Schraders will move to Poplar Bluff.

The Osage district is an area where the council is trying to increase Scouting activities.

An attempt will be made to employ a Scout executive for the Okeechobee District at the earliest possible date, Welborn said.

Electronic Equipment for County Clerk

NEW MADRID - The county clerk's office will change to electronic equipment this year reports Jesse H. Wilkins, county clerk. This will involve a computer with a memory bank, which will be used in making up the county tax books.

At the time the levies are computed, based on valuations of the real estate, personal property, merchants and manufacturers, railroad and utilities and placed on the tax books, the machine also will duplicate the computations and place them on tax statements and receipts for the county collector, which will reduce errors and cut down the time required in making up the tax books, Wilkins said.

Immediately after the tax books are compiled, the machine will be used the balance of the year in abstracting tax receipts as they are collected in the collector's office.

Wilkins said his deputy, Jimmy W. Farrenburg, will be schooled in the use of the machine this spring. The machine was purchased last year, and is being assembled especially for New Madrid County.

Pueblo Victims Identified

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Pentagon today identified the dead crewman of the USS Pueblo, the intelligence ship captured by the North Koreans, as Duane D. Hodges, a fireman from Creswell, Ore.

It also gave the names of three injured crewmen:

Fireman Apprentice Steven E. Woelk, described as seriously injured.

Radioman 3.C. Charles H. Crandell and Marine Sgt. Robert J. Chicca, both described as slightly injured.

The Pentagon gave the home town of Hodges only. It said no further identification will be provided for the other three men under standard Pentagon policy applying to all missing or captured military personnel.

At Creswell, Ore., relatives said Hodges was 21 and a 1965 graduate of Creswell high school, where he played four sports. He entered the Navy about 18 months ago.

There was no word as to how young Hodges died.

The questions raised by the Pueblo's capture off the North Korean port of Wonsan continue to echo in Congress.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., asks why the United States, with its vast radar tracking network, can't say for certain the Pueblo did not violate North Korea's territorial waters.

The South Dakota Republican posed his question as Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., speculated the administration is preparing to apologize to North Korea for violating the sea limit in hopes of getting back the ship and survivors of her 83-man crew.

Top administration officials have said the Pueblo maintained radio silence from Jan. 10-21, before the North Koreans captured her Jan. 23, so it cannot be said for sure she did not violate the Communist nation's sea limit.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen told a Tuesday news conference: "There was some monitoring done and there are some tapes. I think most everything was known."

But Dirksen, who attended White House briefings on the Pueblo affair, declined to amplify his statements further.

Mundt said he is asking the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to add a question about radar coverage to a list of queries on 20 general areas of the Pueblo incident already submitted to the State Department.

Mundt said it seems logical that if American intelligence knows the position of Soviet intelligence ships in all parts of the world— as he said it claims — it could keep track of one of its own electronic vessels without radio communications.

Sen. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., said in a separate interview the same question is likely to be explored at a select committee's briefing by the Central Intelligence Agency on the Pueblo matter.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said on a national broadcast Sunday that they cannot say beyond a shadow of a doubt the Pueblo did not enter territorial waters. Such an assertion, they said, must await release of the captain and crew.

The North Koreans have made an American apology and punishment of the Pueblo's captain basic demands for the release of the captive Americans.

Viet North Use Tanks in Special Forces Camp Raid

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese sent their Russian tanks into the Vietnam war today, apparently for the first time, against South Vietnamese irregulars and their American Green Beret advisers fighting furiously to hold onto a Special Forces camp in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

Reports from Da Nang said a Special Forces sergeant had radioed that only five of the 25 Americans in the Lang Vei camp were still alive— he and four others in the headquarters bunker. He reported a knocked-out tank was on top of the bunker.

The U.S. Command said Lang Vei's defenders destroyed five of the nine Russian T34 tanks sent against them.

The massive assault on Lang Vei, four miles west of Khe Sanh, could be the kickoff of the long anticipated offensive along the northern frontier, which Gen. William C. Westmoreland has predicted will be the biggest enemy push of the war, exceeding the furious assaults on South Vietnamese cities and towns last week.

The campaign against the cities, the largest enemy offensive so far, has died down at most points after eight days, but Viet Cong forces still fought stubbornly in Saigon and Hue.

The U.S. Command said the enemy death toll in the past eight days reached 22,748 by midnight Tuesday. It said 1,768 allied troops have been killed, including 614 Americans and 1,130 South Vietnamese.

Military spokesmen said the North Vietnamese began pounding the Lang Vei camp with artillery at dusk Tuesday, then launched the ground attack about two hours later. The nine Russian tanks rumbled east along Highway Nine, leading the infantrymen through the camp's minefields and three lines of barbed wire.

The camp's garrison— 300-400 South Vietnamese and Montagnard irregulars and their American advisers— took cover in their bunkers, and North Vietnamese sprayed the bunkers with flamethrowers to drive the defenders back from rifle and machine-gun ports.

U.S. headquarters said radio contact was lost with the Americans in the camp at 3:10 a.m. but was re-established at 4:20.

U.S. Marine artillery at Khe Sanh fired tons of shells almost on top of the camp after the Green Berets called for close in support. Air Force and Marine fighter-bombers raked the area with bombs, cannon and machineguns.

A U.S. spokesman said heavy contact continued through the night and diminished about 11 a.m., but some fighting continued. U.S. headquarters said radio contact was being maintained throughout the day.

South Vietnamese headquarters said the irregulars also were still holding out in the camp and were in radio communication with an observation plane.

The camp was kept under aerial observation all day, but visibility was poor. A ground patrol in the area also reported radio contact with men inside the camp.

The camp is 20 miles south of the demilitarized zone and about four miles east of the Laotian border. The tanks which rumbled in from the direction of Laos weighed 30 to 32 tons and carried 76mm or 85mm guns, U.S. headquarters said.

There was no word on the fate of 2,500 Laotian refugees, including 500 Laotian army soldiers, who fled to Lang Vei two weeks ago to escape an attack by North Vietnamese troops.

Communist gunners also shelled the Khe Sanh base, held by about 5,000 Marines, for about five hours Tuesday night. Crews went out during the barrage to repair craters in the air strip.

New Madrid County Budget Cuts Costs

By NADINE TOWNSEND

NEW MADRID - The County Court has approved the county budget for 1968, and lowered anticipated expenditures, reports Jesse H. Wilkins, county clerk and budget officer.

The total expenditures for 1968 were set at a miximum of $402,076.15, as compared with $413,138.86 for 1967. This is unusual in view of the fact that election costs were increased by some $12,000, since there were no elections in 1967.

Other increases in the budget included pay raises for all deputies and appointees, plus a provision to place all county employes under a retirement system, which will take effect on April 1.

An appropriation of $30,000 was made for construction of buildings on the airport, when completed.

A breakdown of proposed expenditures for the current year, with actual expenditures for the prior year in parenthesis are as follows:

Salaries, fees and office expenses $201,229.70 ($171,189.49); court administration $6,000 ($1,849.90); election cost $15,900 ($430.50); public welfare and health services $59,750 ($52,317.29); other contingent expenses and obligations $106,362.64 ($111,710.08); emergency fund $12,833.81 (none); legal unpaid obligations, none (none).

The county road and bridge budget for the current year was fixed at $277,111.04, as compared to $250,008 in 1967, while actual expenditures for the prior year were $227,214.67. The increase in this budget in part is due to improving roads in the industrial park and relocating some roads that may be affected by the new aluminum plant locating in the county.

Wilkins said the proposed tax rates will remain the same, the county rate of 40 cents was recommended, which is about 20 per cent under rates of most adjoining counties, and a rate of 30 cents for roads and bridges, as compared with a 35 cent maximum rate permissible.

Other budgets forwarded to Haskell Holman, state auditor, included county library in which the proposed expenditures were $51,897.98; county health center $82,577.97; Johnson grass control fund $35,235; drainage district no. 29 (sinking) $5,130; drainage district no. 14 maintenance $1,660: drainage district no. 18 maintenance $5,710; drainage district no. 35 maintenance $1,560; drainage district no. 36 maintenance $2,680, and drainage district no. 37 maintenance $1,400.

One other budget for drainage district no. 29 maintenance was taken under advisement, pending a study of any proposed improvements.

Propsals Rap Drugs And Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, calling federal enforcement of narcotic laws "fragmented," asked Congress today to create "a new and powerful Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs."

He also called for an antiriot law that would make it a felony to cross state lines to incite or take part in riots.

In a message to Congress, Johnson said hallucinogenic drugs such as marijuana and LSD present "an insidious and growing threat to our nation's health, particularly the health of young people."

He called for transferring the Treasury Department's Bureau of Narcotics and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's drug abuse control powers to the Justice Department to create the new bureau to clamp down on drugs.

Johnson also called for:

— Top priority to battle organized crime through the Justice Department's series of strike forces "in cities beset by racketeering."

— New laws to make it a federal crime to engage in gambling "as a substantial business affecting interstate commerce." Also, he asked for a measure to preserve the government's taxing authority over gamblers in such a way that it will agree with the Constitution.

The President asked for $100 million for his safe streets legislation. This is double the amount he proposed last year in a measure, still in the Senate, that would provide grants to state and local police agencies to improve techniques and raise law enforcement salaries.

The total federal anticrime effort, Johnson said, would cost about $557 million, a 28 per cent increase above the current year's $435 million.

Johnson said "this year America must decisively capture the initiative in the battle against crime," with the major effort to be supplied by local law enforcement.

"The federal government must never assume the role of the nation's policeman," he said.

Johnson called on each mayor and governor to review not only state and local criminal laws to be certain they are "adapted to the criminal justice problems of the 20th Century," but also to review their correctional systems, courts and "fully support their local police not only in public statements, but with the funds necessary for adequate salaries, first rate training and the most modern equipment."

Johnson described his safe streets legislation as "the cornerstone of the federal anticrime effort to assist local law enforcement."

Johnson said the first step in the federal anticrime drive is better coordination, and he said that he had signed today an executive order designating the attorney general to act as a coordinator of all federal criminal enforcement activities.

Protest March Halted

SEOUL (AP) — The United States and North Korea held their fourth secret meeting at Panmunjom today on the seizure of the Pueblo, South Korean sources reported. U.S. troops halted 400 South Korean students trying to march on Panmunjom to protest the negotiations.

The South Korean sources said the secret meeting preceded an open session and asserted the United States handed over an apology to the Communists. A U.S. military spokesman denied this. But he did not deny a secret meeting was held.

About five miles south of Panmunjom, U.S. Army troops clashed with demonstrating South Korean college students who tried to march across Freedom Bridge.

South Korean police said the soldiers fired 20 warning shots, then used rifle butts to halt the students in a two-hour melee. They reported at least 24 students were injured, nine seriously. A statement from the 2nd U.S. Infantry Division, whose unit was involved, said no one was injured.

Most of the students were rounded up by South Korean national police, a 2nd Division spokesman said.

A few students actually crossed the well-guarded bridge but were headed off by U.S. troops and South Korean police.

Even had all the students crossed the bridge, they would have been unable to reach Panmunjom. The way is barred by a fence 10 feet high and gates to the meeting site are heavily guarded.

The students were demonstrating against U.S.-North Korean talks for the release of the USS Pueblo and her crew. Police said the demonstrators were trying to march over the bridge across the Imvin river to the conference site at Panmunjom, where U.S. and North Korean officials met today at an open meeting of the Military Armistice Commission. But the Pueblo was not mentioned at the meeting.

Anti-American demonstrations broke out in Seoul this week for the first time in five years after South Korean officials accused the United States of slighting South Korea's cause in the secret talks American officials have been holding at Panmunjom with the North Koreans since last Friday.

Korean officials did an about-face today and withdrew much of their criticism. But the clash between the students and American soldiers was certain to inflame public opinion.

The armistice commission meeting today touched briefly on the Communist commando raid on Seoul Jan. 21, which the lone Communist raider captured said was aimed at killing President Chung Hee Park.

The South Korean government had contended that the U.S. government should be paying more attention to the assassination raid and the heightened North Korean infiltration across the demilitarized zone than to the Pueblo.

In Washington, the Pentagon announced it has received the name of one Pueblo crewman who died and three who were injured when the North Koreans seized the intelligence-gathering ship Jan. 23. The Pentagon said one of the injured men was in serious condition and the other two were in grave condition.

Before the battle at the Freedom Bridge, a highly placed South Korean official had said today there was little dispute between the U.S. and Korean governments on the handling of the current crisis with North Korea. A high foreign ministry official told Korean newsmen his government had been consulted before each of the U.S.-North Korean secret talks and was informed fully of the results afterward by U.S. officials.

These attempts to calm the rising resentment against South Korea's chief ally and foreign supporter contrasted sharply with earlier officials complaints that South Korea's case was being neglected and the United States, in its desire to get the Pueblo and its crew back, was preparing to make dangerous concessions to the Communists.

The New York Times reported from Washington that the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise had been ordered to withdraw from a position off the North Korean coast in an apparent gesture of conciliation to encourage North Korea to free the Pueblo and her crew.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

LET'S KEEP THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS THROUGH 1968

Now let us look at the life and the teachings of Him whose birthday we celebrate at Christmas time. Jesus came into the world and He announced to that world, "I have news for you." . . . And Jesus worked his miracles naturally, the miracles of healing, the miracles of feeding were handled by use of the natural forces of life.

Now mark you, Jesus was not making God one whit smaller. I doubt if He would have agreed with the passage in one of the Epistles which speaks of God's "emptying himself" to become a man. For Jesus saw nothing more wonderful than a human being--that was the news he had for us. There is nothing more wonderful than a human being; there is nothing more wonderful than love.

Chronic bronchitis and emphysema are striking more people every year. In 1963, the last recorded year, deaths from chronic bronchitis were up 90 per cent over 1958 - 3,430 vs 1,804. PENSION FUND FIXER?

It is now reported that the chairman of the U.S. Civil Service Commission, John W. Macy, jr., is disturbed about the pension fund for retired Federal Government employes.

The fund, Mr. Macy warns, could become bankrupt before 1987 unless additional financing is obtained. The unfunded liability, he explains, was more than $48 billion as of last June 30.

His worries prompts the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, speaking for private businesses, to observe that the condition of the federal retirement fund could not possibly be very reassuring to Congress, which is considering proposed legislation to give the Federal Government control of all private pension funds.

--And put them in the same fix?

Another newspaper editor writes..."on the subject of honesty in labeling packages, which is subject to considerable investigation at taxpayer's expense, I like the suggestion, source unknown, that the federal government do a little cleaning up of its product, dollar bills for example. It should carry the notation: 'Warning -- This dollar bill has no gold or silver supporting it and is guaranteed only by our government which is deeply in debt and operating at a deficit.' Honesty in government labeling is as important as honesty in labeling goods in commerce."

PRESIDENT'S WEAK-KNEED STANCE

Lyndon B. Johnson went on networks Friday afternoon, presumably to reassure the American people over the highjacking of the USS Pueblo and its 83-man crew.

He reassured no one, unless the Korean Reds and the capitals of Communism in Moscow and Peking.

The President spoke of the "wanton and aggressive act" in the North Korean capture of the United States intelligence ship which he said took place in international waters.

What does he plan to do about it? Apparently nothing but talk and make empty gestures toward the United Nations. He offered no clear determination to get back the Pueblo. He mentioned "design" efforts. He added the issue had been referred to the UN Security Council.

The Security Council, despite a flat Soviet rejection of United States charges, agreed to discuss the Pueblo seizure. But if the President thinks any solution can evolve from the Security Council - in the teeth of Red Russia's antagonism and customary vituperation - he is dismally naive.

All of the UN can be expected to do is debate the whole problem to impasse, with the usual rifling of invective and lie-giving. The UN is incompetent now to solve any kind of crisis, and if Mr. Johnson waits for effective action from in this quarter he will let the USS Pueblo rot its hull out.

The President's attitude was dishearteningly weak. Certainly he and the nation are posed with a grim, tough problem.

But he offered no leadership when direction and purpose are critically needed.

Instead he made a plea to North Korea to relinquish our ship and men. He urged the "whole world community" to persuade Korean Communists to send our ship and crew back.

There is no remote possibility the "world" would comply, or that North Korea would pay the slightest attention to any plea -unless from Russia or Mao China.

What a miserable pass has the United States come to when its President begs before a tinpot nation, which has pirated our ship on the high seas in an overt act of aggression?

We must get this vessel back fast, along with the men, by whatever means are necessary. If we don't show decision and courage and vision in this latest Red provocation, we shall be considered a paper-eagle pushover by every chauvinistic state in the world. And World War III will move tragically closer.

On Valentine's Day
Cards come to you.

People have been celebrating this festival of love and affection since long before there were Valentine cards -- in fact, before it took its present name.

Back in ancient Rome, people celebrated a festival called Lupercalia every Feb. 15. It honored Juno and Pan, and was celebrated with feasting, dancing and revelry. After the spread of Christianity the festival was changed to Feb. 14, the feast day of two Christian martyrs, both named Valentine; but the sentimental meaning of the Old festival has remained to the present time.

People have been giving gifts at Valentine's Day for centuries, but the custom of sending sentimental messages developed gradually with the mail service.

The oldest Valentine cards in America are some small cards with German script, probably made by nuns and monks in the early 1700's.

The custom became very popular in North America during the 1800's. Esther Howland is credited with being the first person in the United States to publish Valentines, in 1840.

Many Valentines of that period were hand painted. They usually showed a fat cupid whose arrows pierced a heart. Some had satin, mother-of-pearl, tassels, imitation gems, sea shells and even dried flowers and seaweed.

Magazines of the 1850's gave glowing accounts of the celebration of St. Valentine's Day. In one, an editor remarked: "A blessing on St. Valentine, the patron of the Day fraught with many heart flutterings and heart enjoyments!"

Many of these old Valentine cards have been saved and are quite valuable today in cash. You may wish to save the cards you get this Valentine's Day. They too may be very valuable, if only in sentiment.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the nostalgic sights you see, as you drive across our tremendous America, is a parade of abandoned farm households.

The purpose of the fields has not been left. The seed is planted, the land yields.

But, the presence of a people is no longer there. The weathered boards of home look out with eyeless glaze, because when a house loses its windows it is like a human being that lacks a view. The emptiness of purpose makes you feel uncomfortable.

The barns are sometimes more fully employed. They may be stuffed with the current crop as a kind of warehouse, or have silage sticking out of their lonesomeness, but the barns have an emptiness too.

Homes are built to shelter people in them, and barns are built to shelter animals.

When you see a farm home, old-fashioned though it be, that has no human life within it, and a barn behind it that has no animal life within it to feed, you see in essence the American pathway of peril from simplicity to complexity.

Barns have many functions. In the days of an earlier America they were a sanctuary, a duty, a danger and a comfort.

Oh, the barn. . .it had so many things to do. The warm shelter of the animals, smelling of sweat after their work in the fields. . . the warm human companionship of taking care of them, giving them hay or grain, slapping their leathern sides, holding a hand to a muzzle, scratching behind an ear, feeling by palm the marvelous response of flexibility of skin and muscle, a shuddering that flicks a fly off but doesn't tell you to take your hand away.

All together, the feeling of mutuality, for the crop. . . and against the wind.

And if he were weary of the arguments within the house, or the reading of many books and mail order catalogs, a person could cure his loneliness by going out to the barn and listen to the soft restlessness and reassurances of the animals there, their chompings, their shuffle of stompings, their putting up with time.

Barns, like people, have their own character. Although, as a child in Kansas City, I used to go out in summer and play in country barns, the barn that has haunted my life is one that the city itself had surrounded.

It had been, I suppose, as much of a carriage house as a barn. It still held the hover of smell left by long ago horses. It stood behind a great brick house where old people lived but did not come out anymore, and the unplucked grapes were eaten by birds in a sagging arbor.

Although our parents warned us away from the old barn, we children crept into it secretly and made it our favorite playhouse. Upstairs we found it was a citadel of yesterday, a museum of the Confederacy and that family's service to it— a museum hung with souvenirs of a banished glory.

To us it was as if the Civil War were there, not for us to read about, but to play with.

We put our short legs into the long gray pants, hitched them up with one hand, waved the swords that were there. We put our fingers into reluctant, time-stiffened gloves that had held previous fingers in ordeal. We wore indoors in that dusty barn a military hat that had sheltered another head from rainfall in the century before us— or so I think now, being older and more respectful.

We didn't think about who had worn these clothings before us or why they had been kept. They were only there, intruders as we were, to enjoy by play. It is only when you are older that you conjecture about such things as fatefall, cherish and perish.

At the time we played with them, these remnants of before, they were something found by chance. And in the glory of our discovery and the joy of our wearing we did not pause to think of those who had worn these uniforms before.

They were only there, something to play with, and whoever owned the barn had kept them there, and we were only children who had snuck our way into the barn and made games with what we found.

It is very nice to have a barn in your life. It keeps a pleasant musty smell of now and then and always.

"Phew! Missed Me!"

SEN. MCCARTHY
STRAW IN THE WIND

Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota says he has no illusions about his chances of defeating President Johnson for the Democratic presidential nomination.

His stated reasons for announcing his intention to enter the primaries in four and possible six states as a peace candidate are to give dissenting Democrats someone to rally around, to promote debate within the party over the conduct of the Vietnam war and possibly to pressure the administration into a policy of deescalation, which McCarthy believes offers the best hope for a negotiated settlement.

It is possible he may achieve just the opposite.

Even should he bring the delegates of several states along with him to the Democratic convention next summer, it is a virtually foregone conclusion that Johnson will receive the nomination anyway, as McCarthy himself acknowledges.

Thus the victory of the President in the face of whatever organized opposition the dissidents can muster could be read as a much stronger party endorsement of his conduct of the war than would a routine, rubber-stamped nomination.

This is the dilemma of the Vietnam dissenters within the Democratic ranks. As for the Republicans, it is by no means a foregone conclusion with them that the path to the White House leads through Vietnam.

If six months from now, though, an end to the war is as far from sight as it is now and public confidence in the way it is being run is as unenthusiastic as it is now, and especially if the war's effects on everyman's pocketbook are as unpleasant as they are now, Vietnam will certainly be a key issue in the campaign.

Whether that key should be labeled "Deescalation" or "More of the Same," however, is the question that remains to be answered.

But now that an avowed dove plans to present himself to the people, the Democratic primaries may give a hint to the answer. That is why the Republicans will be watching them as closely as the Democrats to see how McCarthy makes out - to see whether he rides a groundswell of popular peace sentiment or whether he simply drowns.

H.L. Hunt Says

A LESSON FROM ARGENTINA

Many citizens are disturbed by what seems to them a decline of self - sufficiency and independence in our country. They see evidence that many fellow citizens would rather get something for nothing than try to be self - sustaining and self - respecting.

A rancher in Argentina, Manuel Quintana saw the same destructive tendencies in some of the youth of his country. He wrote to the Argentine president suggesting that young Argentinians be encouraged to help themselves and get ahead by working hard, instead of relying on the government for everything. He said that what Argentina needed was a "Mentality for Progress."

We would do well to study the ideas of Manuel Quintana. This country needs a "Mentality for Progress." For many years, the government has been encouraging individual citizens to surrender to the government their personal responsibility for their own welfare. We have been told that modern life is too complex for any one person to succeed without a great deal of outside help. We have been told that no man is responsible for his own life, that whatever happens to him, good or evil, is to the credit or the blame of society.

This kind of atmosphere creates a "Mentality of Dependence." Without independence and individual intiative, real progress is impossible. The virtues of courage and hard work that built this country formed a "Mentality of Progress" which brought it to unparalleled heights of prosperity. Those who now scoff at these virtues claim to be "helping" the citizens of the United States. In reality, they are doing Americans the worst kind of harm. HLH.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Vietnam had priority over Korea for weapons; Soviet has heavy naval strength in North Pacific; U.S. strength is stretched thin.

(Editor's Note: Jack Anderson is now in Korea to report on the seizure of the USS Pueblo and other war tensions in the Far East.)

SEOUL -- Over here where it happened, grim U.S. officers give a different version of the Pueblo incident than the Pentagon has peddled to the public. Those who dare to talk declare bitterly that the spy ship, with its super - secret electronic gear, could have been rescued if our air force squadrons in Korea had not been stripped of planes and weapons.

Only a few token fighter planes --F-104 Starfighters and F-105 Thunderchiefs -- were ready for action when the Pueblo called for help. But, unfortunately, these were armed with nuclear weapons to defend our forces against an invasion. They were not equipped merely to intercept a couple of communist patrol boats off the Korean coast.

The nuclear armaments, of course, give these few fighters tremendous firepower. In theory, this is supposed to provide our 50,000 ground troops in Korea with adequate air protection and still free a maximum number of planes to fight in Vietnam.

It would also seem to commit the United States to a nuclear response in care full-scale fighting should be resumed in this bleak country. What many Americans don't realize is that the Korean war isn't really over. A truce was declared 15 years ago, but the negotiators at Panmunjon still haven't been able to agree upon peace terms.

The reliance on nuclear retaliation has left a critical shortage here of conventional weapons, which have been taken out of the Korean arsenals to supply the desperate needs in Vietnam. As a result, conventional arms couldn't be collected and loaded aboard the available fighter planes in time to stop the seizure of the Pueblo.

Other supplies, including arms, ammunition, vehicles, helicopters and spare parts, have also been diverted to Vietnam. At one time, the two U.S. divisions in Korea had barely enough helicopters between them for minimum peacetime needs. Planes and helicopters frequently are grounded and other equipment is laid up for lack of spare parts.

VIETNAM COMES FIRST

Vietnam also gets first call on men as well as material. The best-trained soldiers and most experienced pilots usually are sent to Saigon, not Seoul.

Thus it happened that the Pueblo's alarm brought no help, and North Korea's challenge caught the United States unprepared. The real lesson of the Pueblo incident, therefore, is that American might is stretched dangerously thin.

To cover up its unpreparedness, the Pentagon has put out the word that the Pueblo was caught by surprise. The approach of North Korean patrol boats, according to the Pentagon version, was mistaken as routine harassment. By the time the crew realized that the North Koreans intended to seize the ship, so the story goes, it was too late to summon military help.

This is disputed by a confidential report which has sent to the White House, detailing the incident. The report, made available to this column, states that two fishing trawlers silently circled the Pueblo about noon on January 22, then departed without incident for Wonsan!

The following noon, a North Korean subchaser circled the Pueblo three times, and on the last circle, signaled the spy ship to heave to or be fired upon. Three patrol boats joined the subchaser an hour later, and two circling MIG fighters appeared overheard.

The confidential report then relates: "One attempt to board the Pueblo by armed personnel was rebuffed. We believe the North Koreans were prepared to fire and that they later did so, but with what effect tried unsuccessfully to board the Pueblo. At about 1:30 p.m., the Pueblo was again directed to stop, and at 1:45 an attempt to board was apparently successful."

Clearly, this strange drama at sea lasted long enough for the nearest U.S. jets, less than 20 minutes away. to have flown to the rescue. But they simply weren't equipped to cope with the emergency.

STRONG RUSSIAN NAVY

There was also some hesitation over whether U.S. planes had authority to attack the North Korean marauders without direct orders from Washington -- which, incidentally, never arrived. U.S. forces can return the fire of any hostile force which shoots first. But planes loaded with nuclear weapons cannot attack without direct orders from the President. Apparently the question arose as to whether the planes could fire substitute conventional armaments without White House approval.

When the United States belatedly reacted, a naval task force was rushed into Korean waters. Yet the only reason the nuclear carrier Enterprise, Frigate Truxton, and two escort ships were available is that they happened to be in the Sea of Japan en route to Vietnam.

In contrast, Russia had several naval vessels in the area, part of a powerful surface and submarine force that is guarding the shipping lanes from Vladivostok to Haiphong. Soviet ships are reported to be carrying sophisticated new military equipment to the North Vietnamese over these sea routes.

Indeed, the Pueblo's principal mission was to minitor this Soviet sea traffic, particularly Russian submarines. Aerial reconnaissance can keep count of the surface ships. But the Pueblo was equipped with secret, sensitive devices, which could identify and track Soviet subs under the sea.

The Pueblo affront, coming at the same time that the British are planning to withdraw their forces east of Suez, is another sober reminder that the West can no longer police the world. The demands of the Vietnam war, for example, have compelled the U.S. to cancel planned fleet visits to Indian ports.

The blunt truth is that the U.S. doesn't have the military force today to oppose communist so-called "wars of liberation" all around the world.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

TROUBLE IN THE WEST

Powerful Labor Coalition Ready to Smash LBJ's Wage Restraints With Aircraft, Space Strikes.

Washington, D.C.: -- President Johnson, who gives some fascinating black-tie dinner parties himself, should well be interested in some sport-shirt dinners thrown the other day by the cultural section of the Teamsters Brotherhood.

Food at the gatherings, thrown by the Western Conference of Teamsters at the Del Webb Towne House in sun-drenched Phoenix, went down well -- but the table talk could provie indigestible to Lyndon Johnson.

The White House might like to know that the host was the cultural avant-garde truck drivers' chief, Einar Mohn, Director of the Teamsters' Western Conference. And his guests included such labor and economic militants as the Machinists' Roy Siemiller, and those philosophers of free spending, Walter Heller and Leon Keyserling.

There is considerable significance, too, in the man who did not come to dinner though he had agreed to attend and speak- the auto union's Walter Reuther, now hit by tragedy and failing.

Those who did come and speak during the week of Jan. 21 guided the Western Conference's "Workshop." What was said on and off the dais positively means a tough workout for President Johnson's policy of wage restraints. He asked last week "in the strongest terms. . .that unions and business firms exercise the most rigorous restraint in their wage and price determinations in 1968."

If any phenomenon, event or signal disclosed that there would not be restraint on the wage front at this time, it was the Teamsters gathering and the men Einar Mohn carefully chose to address his leadership cadres which cover the nation's Western states.

Mohn is not of the breed of Teamsters who traditionally make the headlines. He speaks softly. He moves toughly. He invited Reuther because the Teamsters and the auto union work closely together in Mohn's western domain.

He asked Roy Siemiller because the Teamsters and the International Assn. of Machinists have a mutual assistance pact. Not inconsequential to Mohn is the fact that Roy, as recorded here as early as 1965, is the most daring and most militant of union chiefs in the mass industries.

Mohn gave Siemiller and Reuther star billing by slotting them as the principal speakers on two succeeding nights. Teamsters acting president Frank Fitzsimmons was brushed off with a 20-minute stint early one morning - and he was received by long yawns and perfunctory quiet.

Reuther, Siemiller and Mohn, who together lead almost three million unionists, now have one major campaign in common. Reuther and Siemiller are preparing for their assault on the aerospace industry, most of which sprawls across the Western states. Mohn has pledged them strong support.

This means that three of the land's most powerful labor leaders will be concentrating on the industry which whips out everything in its line from choppers to huge aerial freighters and from lumbering air tankers to missiles and fighter jets.

And it means that the President's wage - price restraint policy will be cracked. Neither Reuther nor Siemiller have the slightest intention of taking less than the auto workers won from the Big Three car makers. This means upwards of $1 an hour or more or, in a 40-hour week, an increase before overtime of $40 a week over the life of the next contract.

In the auto industry, Reuther won a six to seven per cent package. But you ain't seen nothing yet. Just the other day the machinists settled with a General Dynamics Canadian subsidiary, Canadair, Ltd., in Montreal for a 19 per cent wage-fringe package increase.

That's high and Siemiller knows that he can't hit that jackpot in the states. But he'll try for lots more than six per cent.

If he doesn't get it, he'll shut down the aerospace plants. Reuther will go with him. It was Siemiller who tied up the airlines in '66 and the railroads in '67.

True, aerospace has no tight union shop despite the 300,000 members which the IAM and UAW have signed up. True, some men will try to go through the picket lines. And they may well walk into the plants.

Here, then, is where Einar Mohn's Teamsters roll up the supporting cadres. They control the in and out trucks - in with supplies and raw material, out with the finished parts. If they respect the Machinists-auto union picket lines, nothing much will move in and less will flow out.

That will be a tough combination to beat, if Mohn backs up his friends. And since they broke bread, there's no reason now to believe Mohn will break the lines.

(Reuther did not come. He sent a wire asking for a rain check. He got it. His Western friends know how hard Walter was hit by his brother Roy's death. But Reuther did send in Paul Schrade, Director of the UAW's Western Region 6.)

Mohn supported the Machinists during their long 1966 airline strike. He found jobs for the strikers.

Reports are that such support has been promised during the coming crisis season as 8 major aerospace contracts open up between April and November. The Machinists can use backing, especially since the copper strike already has cost them $2 million.

So there is no doubt that this tough-bargaining combination, which will run its joint UAW-IAM strategy conference in Los Angeles at the Hotel Ambassador for three days starting Feb. 26, will crack the wage ceiling. And they will set a pattern. And this time Lyndon Johnson's headaches will come out of the West.

Square Dance Caller Returns From Ohio

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Volner returned Sunday night from a weekend trip to Ohio where Volner called two dances. On Friday night, he called the Caller of the Month dance in Akron for a closed club of 100 couples.

Volner was chosen as the Caller of the Month in the Akron area when he was first in that area in February, 1967, at which time he was booked for this dance by one of the best-known choreographers of square dancing who workshops all the new square dance calls before they are introduced to the dancers by the National Callers.

While in Akron, Volner also booked the Akron Spring Festival to be held in April, 1969, which he will call with another national caller. This is one of Akron's biggest festivals held each spring and is attended by approximately 2000 dancers. Volner is also booked in Akron again in October, 1968 and February 1960.

On Saturday, the Volners drove to Cleveland where he called for a closed club consisting of approximately 20 squares. Then on Sunday evening, they returned to Granite City, Ill., where Volner called for his "B-Sharp Invitational Club" which dances once a month and is for advanced dancers only. Visitors attending this dance were Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Moore of Sikeston and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stricklin of Blytheville, Ark.

Indians Trim Dogs 74-71

Kennett went one up in the battle with the Sikeston Bulldogs last night, taking a 74-71 SEMO basketball conference win at the Armory and ending all hopes of the league crown.

Sikeston, who lost to these same Indians two weeks ago ran into a hot shooting crew who hit 53 per cent for the game and an amazing 69 the first half in which the Dogs strugged for a field goal, netting but 11 the majority of those on fast break layins.

The Bulldogs staggered the Indians in an early mid-season, clash in the Bloomfield invitational tournament but got their ears pinned back by them in the Poplar Bluff invitation and again last night.

It was a rought night on the court with the taller Indians taking advantage of their three inch height edge and physical strength to tussle past the Dogs for layin after layin.

One could not blame the defense of the Dogs last night for the layins the Indians were getting. They just got pushed out of the way and under the basket.

Mentioning defense..The Dogs second half try surprised many as they halted the Indians' offense while trimming a 17-point lead to two with 31 seconds remaining before a pair of foul shots combined with a technical ended all Dog hopes although it netted a free throw late in the game to cut to three points the Indians' lead.

Kennett shot 68 per cent from the charity line from where it claimed victory, netting 20 charity shots to the Dogs 13. The Dogs netted two more field goals than did the Indians.

Gary Wiss and Fred Townes, who had early first half scoring trouble, were mainly responsible for the second half scoring surge and defensive work. The two, who hold the Dogs together, gained spirit in the second half and played defense resembling that of their earlier mid-season stride.

Wiss and Townes first half shots rimmed the goal time and time again, accounting for 29 per cent first half accuracy and 41 per cent overall.

Sikeston had three scores in double figures with Wiss regaining his stride and dumping in 27. Townes added 19.

Guard Dennis Senlling turned in a 12 point night.

Kennett had four scores in double figures, led by Ricky Cash's 22 points. Mike Tweedy, Paul Watson and Leonard Fingers added 18-15 and 10.

The Indians pulled out a 42-37 junior varsity win.

Sikeston has Poplar Bluff here Friday night, the SEMO conference league leader and Richland Saturday night.

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — The food is great and the beds okay but there's another problem at the Winter Olympics village.

Traffic jams on the elevators are causing sportsmen to be late for training and meals.

Each of the 12-story apartment buildings in the village has only two automatic elevators which start skipping floors as soon as they get loaded.

It prompted the British team to post an appeal in its elevators reading "Look here, boys — this is serious. Everybody wants to be on time. Please avoid waiting by not occupying the lift unnecessarily."

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Paul "Biff" Lowry Jr., 40, Tuesday was named general manager of the Lexington Trots Breeders Association and Tattersalls Sales Co., effective March 1.

Rated Teams Take Wins

Three of the Daily Standard Top Ten basketball teams posted easy wins last night. Second ranked Matthews rolled up an 81-34 win over East Prairie, third ranked Scott County Central beat back Bell City 81-57 and sixth ranked Charleston posted a 73-57 win over Jackson.

Matthews behind the four-man double figure barrage led by Leonard Bishop with 20 points had an easy time in rolling up its 25th win after it grabbed a 17-8 first period lead and held the Eagles under ten points in each of the four periods.

Paul Hale fired in 24 points in leading the Braves past Bell City last night for its 21st win of the season. Eleven men got into scoring column.

Lee Watson and Leonard Rampley scored 12 points each as the Cubs stayed within five points of the Braves in the first period but were out of the game midway in the second as they took a 42-24 half edge.

Charleston ran up its 17th win of the season by knocking off a stubborn Jackson crew behind Ruben Brown's 31 points.

Jackson stayed in contention until the final period, trailing by 35-31 at half and 51-43 going into the finai period before putting it away with a 22 point final period.

Charleston's junior varsity ran its SEMO league record to 6-0 with a 70-46 win. Scott Central's JV unit won 53-42 and Matthews' scored a 66-54 decision.

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Vinegar Bend Mizell, former major league pitcher with the St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets, announced Tuesday his candidacy in North Carolina's fifth district congressional race. He is a Republican.

CHAMROUSSE, France (AP) — Manfred Stiborski of Austria combines business with pleasure at the Winter Olympics.

He buys the special Olympic postcards issued for philatelists for one franc (20 cents), puts on special stamps costing 4 francs (80 cents). Then he stands on the street corner and sells the package for 10 francs (two dollars). Profits pay for his trip.

Depending on how well he does at the Winter Games, He may decide to continue his enterprise at Mexico City.

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Winter Olympics visitors will kindly stick to skating, skiing, hockey, bobsledding and tobogganing and refrain from back seat driving.

The French have pasted notices inside the vehicles used to transport athletes, officials and newsmen from place to place requesting that passengers "do not comment to the driver on his driving."

Rebs Win League Title

DEXTER -- Richland ran up a 30-26 half lead and held on for its 18th basketball victory of the season and the Stoddard county conference title last night, beating Dexter 66-56. It has lost five games.

Steve Scott provided the scoring punch with 15 points while teammates Dean Williamson, Rick Fowler and Billy Lewis provided the rebounding.

Dexter took a 13-12 first quarter lead but fell back at the half and was never able to regain its poise.

The Rebel twins, Larry and Gary Brown, tormented the Bearcats guards, grabbing steals and forcing them into a number of floor mistakes.

Harlan Guethle and Darrell Dixon scored 16 points each in leading Dexter's bid for its 13th win. Dexter is 12-8 now.

Ike Cards Ace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower shot his first hole in one Tuesday, carding an ace on the par-3, 13th hole at Seven Lakes Country Club, a club spokesman said.

"This is the first one I've ever made," Eisenhower said to his companions.

He used a No. 9 iron to make the 104-yard shot.

The 77-year-old Eisenhower's total score was not announced, but he scored an eagle on the par-4 No. 8 hole and barely missed a hole in one on the 18th.

Bloomfield, Howardville Lose Intra-Class Games

It's that time of the year! And it didn't wait until the last week of basketball action. . . it arrived early. . . Mr. Upset.

He arrived on the Southeast Missouri prep cage scene last night and assisted New Madrid and Advance in posting wins over intra-class foes.

Although it might not have been upsets in some books it has to be somewhat of small upsets as Bloomfield and Howardville were the victims.

With the class S and M regionals a pair of weeks away these wins are bound to have some hold back on the losers seeding and are aiming to help the winners, who have been bounding into the winners circle with accuracy.

Advance took its class S win over the highly touted Hawks on a layin by Mark Richmond, who scored a layin with six seconds to go in the game after he grabbed a loose ball after a jump ball.

John Moroni, Terry Daniels and Tony Jenkins scored 16 points each for Advance in leading the scoring while three others shared in the point making, two of those with double figure marks.

Nathanial Thomas topped Howardville scorers with 23 points.

A 14-point third period along with a good defensive effort enabled New Madrid to take a 41-37 win over Bloomfield.

New Madrid fell back 9-2 in the first quarter, failing to hit from the field with accuracy and trailed 17-10 at half before surging ahead 24-20 and holding that lead as both teams opened up their offense a little in the final period and scored 17 points each.

Tucker and Ross paced the winning attack with 12 points each. The Indians defense held the high scoring Glenn "Rawhide" Williamson to 11 points.

Bloomfield won the junior varsity meeting 44-29 and Howardville claimed a 58-56 JV win.

Advance's win was its 11th of the season, moving it to the .500 mark for the season.

Matthews Edges Closer

Oran remained the number one basketball team in Southeast Missouri for the fifth week in a row. The first seven teams of last week's poll held their position. A major change took place in the bottom three as Howardville, Sikeston and Dexter fell.

The Eagles failed to collect all of the 10 first place votes by the Daily Standard sports panel of coaches after they were a unanimous choice last week, the first this season.

Voting was submitted Monday by the area coaches, who seemed to have scented Tuesday night losses by the three, who fell as Advance clipped the Hawks, Kennett the Bulldogs and Richland waylaid the Bearcats.

The only difference in this week's poll between the top seven teams is the point difference, which is tabulated by 10 points for a first place votes, nine for second and eight for third.

Matthews, which grabed two of the first place votes, closed within seven points of the top spot, accumulating 82 points to Oran's 89 and eight first place votes. Scott Central remained third with 70 points but was pursued closely by Notre Dame with 68.

A two-way tie resulted for eighth place and a pair of teams tied for tenth. Clarkton and Southland, seeded first and third in the Class S regional tournament collected 16 points each for an eight place tie. Doniphan and Neelyville gathered 13 points each for a tenth place deadlock.

The biggest test of the week will be Oran's plung into fifth ranked Charleston country Friday night, while seventh ranked Kennett goes to Mexico and sixth ranked Poplar Bluff will be at Sikeston.

Next week's poll will be the last one of the regular season. The final poll in which the top team will receive the Daily Standard Number One team trophy for 1967-68 will follow the class L regional.

Well, I come from a long-long line of Democrats, but I swear there's been too much inbreeding along the way, cause this Johnson child is the best example of an idiot and a hemophilian I've ever seen or read about in all those history books, (for those of you with no medical knowledge this term usually means a person whose blood won't clot, and they're called bleeders, course this case is slightly different in that it's him bleeding us to death instead of the other way round!) Why under the sun do we sit on our (in my case) larger regions and put up with this nonsense???

Did I hear someone mention the Pueblo last week, or did I just dream the Koreans had helped themselves to one of our boats, and then sat themselves smugly down on their Red backsides and laughed in our faces --- no, in Johnson's face -- if I had been in his position I'd have blown their chair right out from under them and watched to see if they'd stay on the floor or rise to the occasion -- something called "better judgment," (me little, you big), tells me they wouldn't have. I don't know, after all I'm only a woman, but still I don't think a woman alive today or anyday would sit by idly and let someone else remove her make-up for her. Oh fellows, you say women aren't fighters, -don't you believe it. They're the only species I know of that can fire a shot that will have repercussions clear around the world, and never pick up a gun! However, Johnson won't even parley verbally, just smiles and slowly drawls "everything will turn out alright," -- that native of Texas sure has lots in common with those bulls he raises!! I guess (Charles will be furious, but at least I got a little of this off my chest -- couldn't get a lot off -- just ain't humanly possible), there isn't a lot we can do about it right now, but by gum, we can do something about it when we go to the election polls and, if you want your children raised in a democracy as good as your parents enjoyed, then get out and vote!

Everyone says and I quote, "I don't really like the way things are, but I just try not to think about it." End of quote, well brother you'd better, cause the world is run by thinkers!

I hate war -- but there will never be a time when the world will be without one - we're humans, everything fights from birth until death, and nations, after all, are only ruled by humans -- but let us at least admit we're at war and go about it in a dignified and humane way.

Let's get out of the ditches and the mire in Viet Nam -- if its war they're determined to have, than lets see that they have it, but with our boys standing upright behind a flag thats waving high-- not some lousy stinkin little police action that is allowing the Reds to slowly and painfully eat out our guts like the scavangers they are until we're to weak to do anything but let them move in for the final kill.

If my sons are going to have to go to war, and they will, all mothers steel themselves for that moment from the time the doctor places him in your arms and tells you it's a boy, at least let them go with their heads held high, and with the feeling their perhaps about to die for something that is precious enough to make that gift worth while.

Vote -- it is still up to you- the people - it won't be for long if we don't make ourselves heard, and known, and most of all felt, and believe me YOU can. You're reading me, I'm being heard, now its your turn--- raise and strike a blow for what we're losing --America "home of the free and land of the brave!"

MRS. SAM LOWREY, Charleston, serves a slice of chocolate pie to her son, "Sambo".

Mrs. Sam Lowrey Jr. Cooks Sews, Reads, Plays Bridge

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 73rd in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

By RUTH DILLENDER

CHARLESTON -- Mrs. Judy Lowrey says that being organized is important in running a household.

Mrs. Lowrey, her husband, Sam, Jr., and their son, Samuel Graves Lowrey III, live at 11 Willow Dr. Sam III, nicknamed "Sambo," is three and a half years old.

The family has lived in Charleston a year and a half. Lowrey is employed by the S&S Grain Company.

The family attends the Methodist church.

Mrs. Lowrey belongs to a women's bridge club and the couple belongs to a bridge club.

She says she likes to cook, a talent she learned through experience and using cookbooks after her marriage.

The homemaker sews making some of her clothes, reads and antiques furniture.

Lowrey's hobbies are playing golf, fishing and hunting. A treasure in the home is a dry sink that Lowrey refinished. Favorite recipes of the Lowrey family are:

BAKED WIENERS

1 medium onion, chopped fine and browned in two tablespoons butter

Add:

3 tablespoons worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ cup water
4 teaspoons lemon juice
½ cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 cup tomato catsup
Salt and pepper to taste

Simmer slowly for 30 minutes. Put 1½ pounds slightly cooked wieners in casserole. Pour sauce over wieners. Bake 45 minutes in 350-degree oven.

STRAWBERRY DESSERT

1 box vanilla wafers
1 carton fresh strawberries
1 box confectioners sugar
1 stick butter
1 pint whipping cream.

Crush box of vanilla wafers. Place ¾ box of crushed wafers in a two-quart Pyrex pan. Mix sugar and stick of butter. Blend well. Spread over layer of wafers. Place carton of strawberries over mixture. Spread the unsweetened whipping cream over strawberries. Sprinkle remainder of crushed wafers on top. Refrigerate for 10-12 hours.

CHOCOLATE PIE

2 cups sweet milk
1 cup sugar
One third cup cocoa
One third cup flour
3 eggs, separated
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 large tablespoons Karo syrup
Pinch of salt

Mix sugar, milk, eggs, flour, cocoa, butter, vanilla and Karo syrup. Stir mixture over medium heat and let boil until thick. Pour custard into eight inch baked pie crust. Beat egg whites and add two tablespoons sugar. Beat until stiff. Add meringue to pie and brown.

SWEET-SOUR CHICKEN

½ cup butter
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
½ cup pineapple juice
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon salt
1 chicken, cut up

In small saucepan combine butter, sugar, pineapple juice, mustard and salt. Heat, stirring occasionally until butter melts and ingredients are well blended.

Place chicken in baking dish. Pour sauce over chicken and bake 1¼ to 1½ hours in 350-degree oven.

Gun Team Gets Used to Each Other

KHE SANH, Vietnam (AP) — The war, for Lance Cpls. Curry, Bennett and Farrah, is a log bunker eight feet square, plus one lovingly cared for machinegun.

They don't much care for the location — hard by the barbed wire on the western edge of the Marine base at Khe Sanh. The surrounding jungle is controlled by North Vietnamese.

Life in the dusty, threatened fortress is hard on all. Curry, Bennett and Farrah are at the bottom of the heap. They get maybe six hours sleep a night, two C ration meals a day.

As best they can recall, they haven't had a shower in two months. Downwind, they smell a bit strong to visitors.

"What do you mean?" the team gunner, Johnny Bennett from West Palm Beach, Fla., asked with a grin. "We cleaned up yesterday. We shaved. Besides, we get used to each other."

Since last October the team has been together — Bennett, blond, smiling Larry Curry, from Concord, Calif., and husky, silent Michael Farrah, the team leader from Lakewood, Calif. Curry is 19, the others 20.

They operate a nasty black M60 machine gun; Farrah the leader, Bennett on trigger and Curry the "ammo humper."

Barely a year ago they were fresh out of high school. Bennett was a dropout — he hopes to get a diploma before he leaves the Marines. Now, they are the first line of defense, at least for about 30 yards, for 5,000 Marines.

By day they haul up ammo, dig a little deeper, snake out to repair cuts in the barbed wire, or read any tattered magazine that comes their way. They complain mostly about the big rats and wild pigs that bother them at night, setting off trip flares that make them jump and have to be replaced the next day.

By night they watch and sleep in the log bunker that has been their home for two months — eight feet on each side and four feet deep with enough sandbags on top to take a direct mortar hit but not much against a direct rocket or artillery shell.

At sundown they start alternating watches, an hour and 15 minutes for each man.

"We don't like to stay on watch too long," Farrah says. "We had rather swap around. If you stay on too long the weeds and bushes start to move around. We don't want to start seeing things."

Curry recalls that on his last five-day rest leave he went to Bangkok and saw a war movie, "The Dirty Dozen." Says it was great.

Now the outside world is far away and they snatch at bits of scuttlebutt. When the intelligence ship Pueblo was seized they thought the United States had declared war. They were overjoyed to confirm this wasn't so.

"We were afraid our enlistments would be extended," said Bennett.

Pilot Awarded 36 Medals Posthumously

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Chief warrant Officer Louis F. Keevan of Florissant, a St. Louis suburb, was awarded 36 medals posthumously Tuesday, including 33 Air Medals for heroism and three Distinguished Flying Crosses.

Keevan, the pilot of a light observation Army aircraft, was killed in Vietnam Dec. 4 while on a mission. His wife, Gloria, accepted the medals in ceremonies at the chemical company where she works.

The pilot served two tours in Vietnam and rolled up 3,300 hours in combat. He received a second Oak Leaf Cluster to the DFC for his voluntary actions above and beyond the call of duty while piloting a L-19 in support of Marine forces near Quang Tri.

Unidentified Girl's Burial Scheduled

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — Burial for an unidentified girl whose body was found last week in a weighted suitcase in Alton Lake will be held today in St. Charles.

So far authorities have no clues as to the girl's identity or cause of death, St. Charles County Corner Frank Amalong said Tuesday. He said the condition of the body made identification by comparing footprints with birth certificates impossible.

The girl was found last Thursday by two men.

Lack of Funds May Close Red Cross Office

KENNETT -- A lack of funds may cause the closing of the full-time Dunklin County Red Cross Chapter, it was disclosed today by officials of the county organization.

Facing a lack of donations, officials expressed concern that the full-time chapter, that serves as an important link between servicemen and their families, may be forced to shut down.

S. H. James of Clarkton, the chapter's fund chairman, said today that contributions to the county chapter are $1,000 less than last year despite an increased work load as a result of the Vietnam war.

James pointed out that $70 per month is spent on telephone calls and telegrams, arranging furloughs and leaves for servicemen in Dunklin county. In addition, some $500 a year is spent in loans to servicemen, of which only a small portion is repaid. Other expenses include $350 annually for rent, including utilities, and $1500 a year for the salary of a fulltime employe.

The county fund chairman said some $9,000 is required in donations to administer the local chapter and to meet its requirements to the national Red Cross.

James said today, "This year the local chapter observed its fiftieth anniversary and it would certainly be a serious blot on the history of Dunklin County to observe the anniversary by having to close the chapter."

James urged Dunklin countians to respond to his appeal and send donations to enable the county chapter to remain open. Donations may be sent directly to the Red Cross Chapter, Kennett, to James at Clarkton, or to Gene McKinney, president of the chapter, in care of Kennett National Bank, Kennett.

New Gas Line To Be Laid in Butler County

POPLAR BLUFF -- The Missouri Utilities Company plans a new transmission line and distribution system to provide gas between Poplar Bluff and Fisk along Highway 60 East of the City.

The project calls for an expenditure of approximately $115,000.

The Bob Batten Equipment and Contracting Company of Poplar Bluff will start work on the project as soon as final authority is received from the Federal Power Administration.

3 Favorites Renew Impact On U.S. Religious Scene

By DAVID POLING

Catherine Marshall, Fulton J. Sheen and Norman Vincent Peale have made a surprising re-entry into the American religious scene. This has happened when so many theological commentators had written them off.

In their place a new breed had been installed and seemed to dominate thoroughly our mass media. Certainly no one can put down the amazing impact that Harvey Cox, Malcolm Boyd, Bishop James Pike and Carl Burke have had in the last two or three years. They have had their best sellers, Playboy interviews, television panels and all-night radio shows.

It seemed easy and proper to believe, therefore, that the religious personalities of a decade ago should be lost in the religious upheaval that has hit churches and our culture.

In the 1950s Bishop Sheen had his dazzling television show. Norman Vincent Peale's book, "The Power of Positive Thinking," crowded book stores and dominated the best-selling list. Catherine Marshall was able to convey the warmth and courage of her husband-preacher into "A Man Called Peter."

But over the years the mood changed and new faces, ideas and action appeared. Although not forgotten these three seemed to be out of it.

However in the last six months Mrs. Marshall, Peale and Sheen have returned in prominent and unpredictable ways. For instance, Mrs. Marshall's novel, "Christy," is suddenly looking down from high up on the best-seller list.

Bishop Sheen returned to national leadership last summer via his post in Rochester, his forthright stand on racial justice, the war in Vietnam and church renewal.

In the case of Peale, even his critics have grudgingly conceded that his presidency of the Protestant Council of the City of New York has been a good if not a great selection. Taking over when the council was crunched with leftover World's Fair debts and breathing hard with unpleasant divisions, Peale guidingly went to work. Money was raised, lay talent recruited, social outreach rejuvenated and a fresh spirit of co-operation recovered.

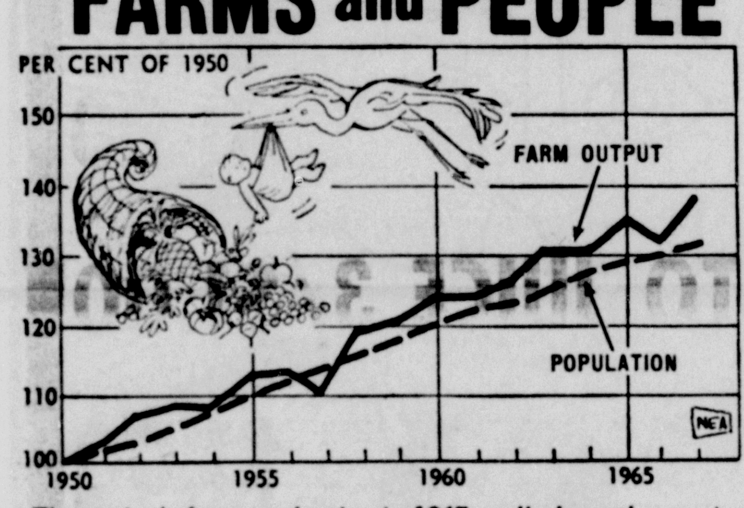
Perhaps none of the changes are more dramatic than Peale's New Year's message to the Protestant Council. It reflects the changes in his own life, an enlargement of vision and a serene mixture of negative and positive thinking.

"I think there is no doubt that religion will be a failure in 1968 as it was in 1967. There are so many things that it doesn't do that it should do."

Then he looked to the brighter side when he added, "But religion has some successes to its credit also. The ecumenical spirit is growing enormously. Men of good will are increasingly and effectively active in behalf of justice and humanitarianism. Compassion, always the hallmark of religion, is being implemented currently in a major attack on ghetto conditions. Interracial relationship in the religious community has proceeded to the point where it has long ceased to be a novelty."

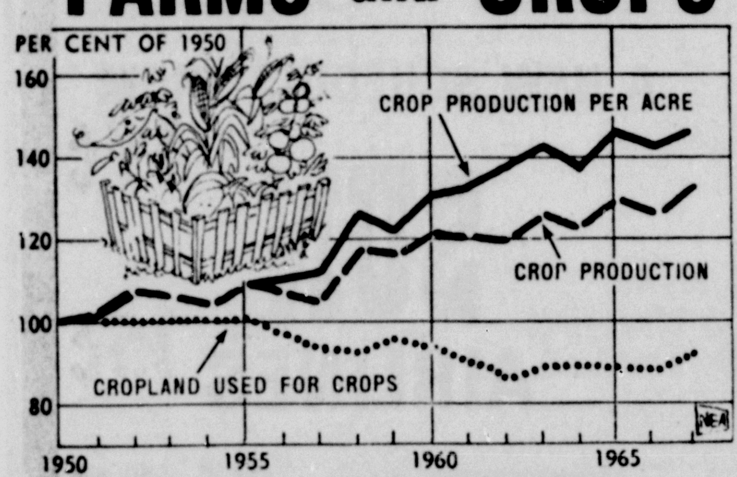
These three have changed as creatively as the world about them.

FARMS and PEOPLE



The nation's farm production in 1967, well above the previous year, keeps pace with increased population.

FARMS and CROPS



U.S. crop production reached a record high in 1967, according to Department of Agriculture estimates.

MINI-THERMOSTATS, about the size of an earring, get adjustment from an Essex Wire Corp. employe before being tested at temperatures ranging from minus 30 degrees to 500 degrees Fahrenheit. An IBM computer monitors eight testing stations, each of which can check 35 units at a time. The thermostats are used as switches in missiles and must be sensitive to temperature changes.

VERBLE'S T.V.

Washington Report

by Senator Symington

VIETNAM -- Intensity of the attacks in Saigon and other cities and towns of South Vietnam last week once more emphasized the military as well as the political problems in that country about which I have expressed growing apprehension.

Because the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese utilized the TET holiday program in a manner comparable to the way they utilized the various bombing cessations of the past, only the extraordinary gallantry of our own forces as well as those of our allies prevented the development of an even more serious situation.

NEW VETERANS BENEFITS -- On a trial basis, twenty one-stop veterans centers, including one in St. Louis, are to be opened in various cities throughout the country.

Through these offices, veterans will be able to get personal counsel on opportunities and benefits to which they are entitled in such fields as education, employment, housing and health.

Experience at the first pilot locations will provide guidance on possible future centers. Participation by state and local officials as well as all organizations engaged in helping the veteran will be encouraged.

Also, during this past week, President Johnson submitted recommendations for increasing the maximum guarantee on GI home loans from $7,500 to $10,000; for added vocational rehabilitation to service -disabled veterans; and for a special program to encourage veterans to teach in deprived areas, and work in local police forces, fire departments, and hospitals.

NATIONAL FOOD RESERVE-- This past week, L. C. Carpenter, Vice President of the Midcontinent Farmers Association (MFA), Columbia, Mo., testified before the Senate Subcommittee on Agricultural Production, Marketing and Stablization of Prices of the Agriculture and Forestry Committee, in support of legislation to establish a national food reserve.

As Mr. Carpenter pointed out in his testimony, the reserves should be held to meet emergencies and should be insulated from the market in order to prevent any possible price-depressing influence.

I have long supported this type of program and hope that it will be authorized in this session.

$782.35 Franchise Paid by Cable TV

CARUTHERSVILLE --It was reported by Bootheel Video in Caruthersville that they are paying a semi-annual franchise of $782.35, which is based on the number of cable-television hook-ups that they make.

This is one of 2,000 cable TV systems across the country serving two million people.

College Freshman Assigns Term Paper Writing Job to Columnist

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a college freshman and when I tell you I am just barely making it, this is no exaggeration. I knew college was going to be rough but I didn't think it would take so much of my time.

I'm a little late with my psychology paper and I would certainly appreciate it if you would help me out. What I need is a rough draft, about 1200 words. I'd like you to list the principal causes for the deterioration of morality in our society. And please touch on the major problems of today's youth. Some authorities say the youth of today has more social pressures than the youth of 25 years ago. Please bring out this point.

Thank you from the bottom of my heart, Annie old girl. I knew you wouldn't let me down. You have a kind face. I'll bet you weren't bad looking in your day. ---EIGHT BALL

Dear Eight: So all you need is 1200 words -- sort of a rough draft? Are you sure you don't want me to write the paper and have it typed in finished form?

Look, Doll, every year about this time I get a few dozen requests from kids who would like me to do their work. I'll tell you what I tell the rest of them. Nobody wrote my papers when I was in school and I'm not going to write papers for anyone else. Haul your carcass over to the library (Slippery Rock has a fine one) and get to work, Bub.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 12-year-old boy who used to be happy and normal until my mother decided I should be a great piano player. I have been taking lessons for eight months and I hate it. Music is supposed to bring happiness but it is ruining my life.

I have thought of calling our doctor and asking him which is healthier for a growing child, to be in a stuffy house practicing the piano or to be outside playing ball in the fresh air. Somebody said that Erroll Garner still practices every day. If a great piano player like that has to practice every day after all the playing he has done, when does a person get good enough to relax? Please help me. --- NO MOZART

Dear No Mo: Erroll Garner doesn't practice to GET good. He practices to STAY good. Keep beating those ivories, fella, even though you hate it. It's good discipline and one day you'll be glad your mother made you stick with it.

Dear Ann Landers: Everytime you print a letter knocking "drop in" company I bless you for it. I noticed, however, some readers do not agree with you.

I have just figured out the rationale of the people who love drop-in company. They are the ones who like to do things the easy way. After all, an invitation carries with it an obligation to be well-groomed when you greet guests. One must have the house in order and refreshments on hand.

When people drop in, anything goes. Moreover the day is yours till the moment they arrive. What if the house is a mess? "I was cleaining the basement --forgive the way I look. I haven't baked a thing this week but if you'd like a cup of coffee -- with cream, I'm afraid. . ."

When I entertain people I do it properly and I don't need any excuses for goofing off. --NO COP OUT

Dear No Cop Out: You sound like someone I'd like for a friend. I wouldn't drop in on you and you wouldn't drop in on me. Who was it that said high fences make good neighbors?

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Delta School Officials Will Discuss Merger

CAPE GIRARDEAU --Officials of the Delta public schools will meet Wednesday night with the Cape County board of education to discuss the tentative proposal of the Delta school district joining the communities of Advance and Chaffee to create a reorganized district.

The meeting will be held at the court house in Jackson. Representing the Delta schools will be Supt. Jordan Needham and members of the board of education.

School board members and administrators, together with a group of interested citizens from each of the three communities, met at Delta elementary school last week to investigate the posibilities and feasibility of creating a combined district.

H. D. Cook, a member of the state department of education and formerly school superintendent at Delta, was in attendance as a consultant.

It was agreed that officials of each district would convene with their county boards of education to get their reaction to the proposal.

Advance representatives will convene with the Stoddard County board of education; Chaffee with that of Scott county.

After these individual meetings, another joint session will be held, Needham said.

'Obscene' Literature Sales Protested

POPLAR BLUFF -- A delegation of about 20 men and women complained Tuesday night of what they called "obscene" literature should be stopped in Poplar Bluff.

Armed with tabloid publications available on news stands across the nation the group urged the council to ask store owners to remove the literature from their shelves voluntarily and to possibly pass type of ordinance that would control its sale.

After more than an hour of discussion with the council at the beginning of the meeting, the group retired to the police court room downstairs and elected six members to serve on a joint council committee. Selected were Mrs. Sylvia Seib, Mrs. Rose Shewmaker, the Rev. Gene Sells, Mrs. Doris Swartz, Ronald Little and Buddy Clark.

Named from the Council by Mayor Earl Porter to serve on the "decency promotion committee" along with the citizens were Aldermen Troy Pruett, Bill Marvel and Earl Anspach.

Mrs. Shewmaker read to the Council a letter from Gov. Warren E. Hearnes pledging his support of the activities of the citizens group.

The citizens distributed among the Council and audience a monthly tabloid publication entitled "It's Happening," published in Cleveland, and aimed apparently at Negro readers. The newspaper contained several articles on sex, with one of them circled for the close attention of the Council.

The owner of the news stand where the publication was sold said the tabloid mailed and others like it are from the Cleveland publisher. He implied that postal inspectors haven't questioned the sending of the publication through the mail.

WALTER R. SMITH, JR., Vice-President of a brewery has been elected illustrious potentate of Moolah Shrine Temple's 11,000 members in Eastern Missouri.

Smith Elevated By Shrine

ST. LOUIS -- Walter T. Smith, Jr., was elected illustrious potentate of Moolah Shrine Temple at the organization's annual meeting.

Smith, who will serve a one-year term, succeeds Loren Willhoft.

As chief rabban, Smith, vice-president of a brewery, headed Moolah's record-breaking 1967 annual circus for the benefit of Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children and 25 other child health and welfare organizations.

Other officers elected and appointed to the divan, or ruling body, are: Edward W. Garnholz, Clayton; high priest and prophet, Delbert Miller, St. Louis, oriental guide, Samuel C. Kraus, Jr., treasurer, Robert W. Conradi, recorder, Elmer E. Kempf, first ceremonial master, Robert E. Conyers, second ceremonial master, Arthur C. Haack, and Director, LeRoy A. Weidle, Jr., all of St. Louis; Marshal, Eldon Turnbull, Troy, captain of the guard, Lester P. Francis, St. Louis.

Newly appointed to the divan as outer guard is Ralph E. Sheets, Jr., Des Peres.

A member of temple since 1955, the new potentate was appointed to the divan in 1958.

He served in the Pacific during World War II as lieutenant colonel and took part in the assaults at Leyte, Okinawa, Guadalcanal, Bougainville, Luzon and Korea.

He is a member of the board of directors of the St. Louis Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce, the St. Louis Council of the Boy Scouts of America, and is a former vice president of the Missouri Athletic Club.

His Masonic career includes membership in Sentinel Chapter, DeMolay, Purity Masonic Lodge, Bellefontaine Chapter and St. Aldemar Commandery of the York Rite, and the Scottish Rite.

He is married to the former Ruth Jane Lueking. The couple has two children, Nancy and Thomas Lloyd, a student at Texas Christian University.

Moolah Temple, all of whose 11,000 members are Freemasons, helps to support Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, and gives financial assistance to 25 other child health and welfare agencies.

Bankers Will Meet in Columbia

Quang Refuses Aid to Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP) -- The antigovernment Buddhist monk Thich Tri Quang refused to help the Viet Cong when they came to his Saigon Pagoda, informants said today.

They added he ordered the destruction of equipment which might be useful to the Communists.

The politically powerful monk, whose antigovernment activities have often led to speculation that he directly or indirectly supported the Viet Cong, was reported to have left the An Quang pagoda when the Viet Cong moved in last week.

James W. Wallace Chief Patriarch

James W. Wallace became the new chief patriarch of the encampment branch of the Odd Fellows Lodge Saturday night at the Odd Fellows Hall.

Cairl Woodruff of Dexter was elected high priest; Wm. Boos of Cape Girardeau was elected senior warden, and Carl Morrison of Cape Girardeau was elected junior warden.

A. L. Meisenheimer of Cape Girardeau became the new scribe for the encampment and Fred Forbis of Sikeston became the new treasurer.

The grand patriarch of the Missouri Grand Encampment, Gerald Goin of Chaffee, addressed the group.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our maker. For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. (Psalm 95:6-7)

PRAYER: In my moments of meditation and prayer, O God, separate me from the world of sense and time, and enable me to bow in Thy presence, with a humble, contrite heart flooded with the love of Christ. There speak to me and send me forth into Thy world to do Thy will. In the Lord's name. Amen.

Fewest Jobless In 15 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped to 3.5 per cent last month, the lowest level in almost 15 years, the Labor Department reported today.

Total employment at 73.3 million was at an all-time high for January and up 1.1 million from a year earlier, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The drop in the jobless rate from 3.7 per cent of the civilian labor force in December was due largely to a greater than usual decline in the number of women seeking works, Commissioner Arthur M. Ross reported.

The January labor force declined 1.7 million, and women accounted for half of the drop, the bureau said.

"It was apparently because of a decline in retail trade after Christmas," Ross said of the greater than expected decline in the number of women seeking jobs.

The 3.5 per cent jobless rate was the lowest since November 1953, when the same rate was recorded, the Bureau said.

The unemployment rate for women dropped from 4.1 per cent in December to 3.9 per cent in January.

The rate for men rose from 2.2 to 2.3 per cent while the rate for teen-agers declined from 12.8 to 11.3 per cent.

The jobless rate for nonwhite workers, mostly Negroes, declined more rapidly than that for white workers but was still double the rate for whites.

The rate for white workers declined from 3.3 per cent to 3.2 per cent and the rate for nonwhites dropped from 6.9 to 6.4 per cent.

Emerson Takes Motor Making Operations South

KENNETT -- Emerson Electric headquarters in St. Louis announced this past week that the company is ending all electric motor production operations in St. Louis and has transferred this work to plants in Kennett and Paragould, Ark.

John Mead, manager of the Emerson - Electric Manufacturing Co. plant in Kennett, reported that the transfer of the electric motor production operations to Kennett and Paragould has been taking place for the past several weeks, beginning late in November, and is now completed.

The local officials state that a number of new employes have been added to the Kennett plant to take care of the expansion operations.

Emerson, which began producing electric motors and fans in 1890, made its first move out of St. Louis in 1956. It opened a plant to prodce fractional horsepower electric motors at Paragould, Ark. to counter competition from giant producers. Additional plants later were opened at Russellville, Ky., Rogers, Ark. and Kennett.

The production workers at the St. Louis plant are being absorbed into the company's growing electronics and space division which operates in St. Louis.

Eagleton Hires Campaign Pro

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton has hired Matthew A. Reese, 39, of West Virginia to help him wrest the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator from Sen. Edward V. Long of Bowling Green.

Eagleton said Reese would start by organizing volunteers in St. Louis city and St. Louis County.

Reese engineered the late President John F. Kennedy's primary victory in West Virginia in 1960 and aided the Jackson County Committee for County Progress in upsetting political faction candidates there in 1966.

Reese's campaign style relies heavily on telephone campaigning and block-by-block organizing.

Mrs. Fisher, Editor at Cairo, Dies

CAIRO -- Mrs. Bess Brown Fisher, 82, editor, and widow of the late John C. Fisher, one of the founders of the Cairo Evening Citizen, died Tuesday at her home.

Mrs. Fisher was the daughter of Zorade L. Irvin and Alfred Brown of Thebes, where she was born. The family moved to Cairo when she was small.

She was an active member of the First Presbyterian Church.

In 1963, Mrs. Fisher was named Newspaper Woman of the Year of the Cairo Business and Professional Women's club, of which she was a past president.

In April of 1964, she was awarded the Master Editor's Award by the Southern Illinois University department of journalism in recognition of:

"Sixty years of constructive and faithful leadership of the Cairo Evening Citizen and 27 years as its editor and manager; her valuable support of civic and charitable campaigns in her community; her leadership in helping secure the preservation of Magnolia Manor and the establishment of Cairo Point-Fort Defiance State Park, and her wide range of activities for women in her community and state."

She married Fisher in 1931. He suffered a stroke and Mrs. Fisher took over active direction of the paper in 1934, continuing to manage it after his death in 1937 until ill health six years ago forced her semi-retirement.

She remained a guiding hand for her nephew, Martin Brown, until her death.

Mrs. Fisher was a member and past regent of the Egyptian Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution; the Cairo Woman's Club, charter member of the Magnolia Garden Club, and the Patron's Club of Magnolia Manor.

She has served as vice president of the Cairo Chamber of Commerce; Golden Book of Memories, and state public relations chairman for the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club.

Survivors are an adopted son, John Martin Brown, another nephew, Harrison L. Brown, Ariz.; two nieces, Mrs. Maybelle Mickelson, Westport, Conn.; and Mrs. Betty Azzouni, St. Louis; and a cousin, Mrs. Maude Michamp.

Services will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday in the Crain Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Roy A. Kale, a former pastor of the Cairo Presbyterian Church, officiating.

Burial will be in the old Thebes Cemetery.

Reduced Mortgage Payments Available To Reservists Called

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Housing Administration said Tuesday reservists and others called to military duty can make reduced payments on FHA-insured home mortgages if their military pay is insufficient to meet regular payments.

As explained to lenders by FHA Commissioner P. N. Brownstein, a lender can agree to temporarily reduced payments as long as the serviceman agrees to increase payments later to pay off the mortgage in its regular term.

Another Site For Commodities

CARUTHERSVILLE --The fire that destroyed the fair ground exhibition hall in Caruthersville suppulied a need for another location for distributing commodities. Pemiscot County Clerk, Harold Jones, reports that another site, the old Brown Shoe building, has been chosen and work has started on a portion of the building to put it in usable condition.

The fire in the exhibition hall destroyed almost $83,000 worth of commodities. Jones says that the day after the fire a truckload of commodities were shipped in and had to be taken to Portageville. He said that area people were able to get commodities in Portageville on one day last week.

The old factory has been deserted. According to Jones, work is being done on the office portion of the building. "We are just trying to fix it up so that we can use it at least temporarily," said Jones.

Kerner Not To Run

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Otto Kerner said today "I choose not to run" for re-election as governor this year.

Kerner, a Democrat, said he talked to Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago and President Johnson this morning about his plans. Both of them said they were sorry he was not running again, Kerner said.

Kerner, 59, is chairman of a new national advisory commission on civil disorders which President Johnson created last year.

He was elected governor in 1960, defeating the incumbent Republican, William G. Stratton, and was re-elected in 1964, defeating Charles H. Percy, who now is a U.S. senator from Illinois.

At a news conference today Kerner said he had no offers of any other jobs and it would be "presumptuous" to speculate about a federal appointment because "none has been offered to me."

Wesley Named To MOPAC Industrial Post

ST. LOUIS -- Jack K. Wesley has been promoted to director of industrial development for the Missouri Pacific system, it was announced by E. Smith Reed, assistant vice president - industrial development. He assumes a post that has been vacant following promotion of Reed.

Wesley joined MoPac in 1949 following his graduation from Washington University in St. Louis. He rose to assistant engineer in the transportation company's engineering department before joining the industrial development department in 1958 as an industrial agent.

Wesley was promoted to general land agent in 1961 and in 1966 was raised to assistant director of industrial development.

MoPac's industrial development staff has been responsible for attracting many new or expanded industries to the 12-state area served by the company, often combining its efforts with those of local and state industrial development grups and chamber of commerce organizations. During the past three years, 931 firms have constructed new or expanded facilities along MoPac's 12,000 miles of railroad at an estimated capital investment exceeding $1 billion.

Refugees Clog Center Of Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Tens of thousands of refugees, loaded down with household utensils and clothing, clogged the streets of Saigon today. They were fleeing from their homes in the southern part of the city, swarming into the capital's secure center.

The refugees claimed the police were unable to give them any protection against marauding Viet Cong bands.

"The Viet Cong came to my shop last night with cigarette lighters and rifles," a tearful shopkeeper said. "They were only kids, but they threatened me and burned down my shop. Now 500 homes are burned," he said, pointing to a block-long mass of ruins.

The shopkeeper said many people from the locality ran to the police headquarters 200 yards down the road, "but the police never came to help, no one came."

"I have lost everything, 4 million piasters worth, and so has everyone else around me," the shopkeeper said as he raked through the smouldering remains of his shop.

Moving past him on the street were refugees in bicycle cabs, pushing their own bicycles, and on foot.

City officials report 47,000 refugees have been registered in official camps. The exodus from the heavily populated southern section is expected to push the total far above that.

Saigon and its suburbs have an estimated population of nearly 3 million people.

The 8th Precinct on the south stretches alongside Cholon, the Chinese section, and is a maze of canals and shacks. It was an area of panic today.

Traffic jammed the main bridge leading toward the center of town. Smaller bridges were under sniper fire.

Several blocks had been razed during the night, one by the Viet Cong. Residents said 500 yards of homes along one canal were destroyed by U.S. and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers that dropped napalm and fired rockets on suspected pockets of Viet Cong.

Air strikes continued today on the outskirts of the precinct, but no troop reinforcements had been sent in. All reserves were fully committed in other parts of the city.

Policemen in the area said the Viet Cong still held some parts of the precinct, but not enough troops were available to search them out.

The refugees were being sheltered in 33 hastily organized centers set up in schools, Buddhist pagodas, churches and hospitals.

Officials said the food situation in the city was serious but not yet critical.

Rice and other staples were available but prices were two to four times normal. There were considerable reserve stocks of rice in the city, but distribution was disrupted.

"It is not a crisis yet," said one U.S. official, "but it is certainly a very serious problem. The food situation will stay tight for quite a while."

Robber Joins FBI List

WASHINGTON — Robert Leon McCain, who has participated in hundreds of Texas armed robberies and allegedly murdered a customer in a Dallas bank while committing a holdup, has been added to the FBI's list of 10 most wanted fugitives.

While two accomplices waited in a getaway car, McCain is reported to have entered the Inwood National Bank of Dallas on the morning of August 8, 1966, waving a blue steel revolver and wearing a grotesque rubber Halloween mask. After forcing bank employees to fill a sack with approximately $15,000, McCain reportedly began to flee from the bank when the sack split open and the loot dropped on the bank floor. A customer attempting to apprehend the robber succeeded in tearing off the robber's mask and shirt but was shot and killed by the bandit who escaped through a rear door while firing two or three shots at pursing employes.

On Oct. 11, 1967, following intensive FBI investigation, McCain was charged in a federal warrant issued at Dallas, with bank robbery.

It is alleged that McCain has also been an extremely active member of a Houston, armed robbery gang and has taken part in from 100 to 200 holdups in that area since 1964.

McCain has been arrested in several Texas cities since 1959 on such charges as burglary and theft, destruction of private property and robbery by firearms. He has been convicted of burglary.

He is a white American who was born at Marshall, Texas, on Oct. 31, 1941. He is 5 feet 9 inches to 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 150 to 155 pounds, has dark brown hair which is thick and wavy, brown eyes and a medium build. He has worked as a bricklayer's helper and laborer.

Known to be quick tempered and a glib talker, McCain reportedly enjoys bragging about his exploits, particularly when under the influence of alcohol or marijuana which he allegedly frequently uses. He is said to dress neatly and expensively, drink beer and bourbon, enjoy western music and dancing and patronize establishments featuring such entertainment. He has reportedly tern or mountain songs, is an avid fisherman and enjoys fine foods, being especially fond of steaks and Mexican food. McCain has allegedly used disguises and make - up during holdups.

He should be considered armed and extremely dangerous. Anyone with information concerning him should immediately contact the nearest office of the FBI, the telephone number of which may be found on the first page of local telephone directories.

Tito Peace Plan Would Allow Israel To Use Suez Canal

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — President Tito of Yugoslavia is trying to win President Gamal Abdel Nasser's approval of an Arab-Israeli peace plan permitting Israel to use the Suez Canal, informed sources report.

Egyptian sources said in talks Monday, Nasser insisted on settlement of the Palestine refugee problem as a condition for permitting Israeli ships to use the canal and ending the 20-year Arab state of belligerency against Israel.

Tito has called all along for Israeli withdrawal from captured Arab territory. However, he modified the peace plan he suggested last August by adding explicit proposals for Israeli use of the canal and an end to Arab belligerency. Yugoslav sources said the plan might be the basis for a new approach to the U.N. Security Council.

Kennedy Raps Viet Lack of Allegiance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says the massive Viet Cong attacks on South Vietnam population centers reveal the "deadly apathy" of the South Vietnamese.

The Massachusetts Democrat, who has often criticized corruption within the South Vietnamese government, said the surprise Viet Cong attacks would have been impossible "if there were a population in South Vietnam that felt even a reasonable allegiance to its own government."

Kennedy, in a Monday speech to the American Advertising Association, added:

"Unless we assume that the enemy has the strongest internal security system known, it would have to be said that there was no one in those 26 cities and Saigon who felt compelled to inform the central government of the time and place of even one of these attacks."

As Kennedy spoke, Republican presidential hopeful Richard M. Nixon said in Wisconsin that the guerrilla attacks prove Americans aren't being kept fully informed about the war's progress.

Before the Viet Cong raids, Nixon said, there had been optimistic reports issued in Washington indicating the military operation was going well or that "peace was around the corner."

But meanwhile, Nixon added, "apparently our hard intelligence indicated that not only was the enemy capable of doing what it did in this last offensive, it is capable of doing it again."

He said the Johnson administration "would be much better advised to tell the American people the truth about the enemy's strength and the enemy's intentions, and at the same time make very clear that we're not going to cave in to this kind of assault."

Kennedy called for a new confrontation between this country and the Saigon government, saying the South Vietnamese leaders must be told to reform, to make their government "worthy of the respect of the people."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield endorsed Kennedy's call, saying he believes it's time for "very serious talks" along this line.

In other war-related developments:

— Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, deplored the publicized summary execution of a Viet Cong but suggested that rather than a cold-blooded murder, it was the product of "a flash of outrage."

In a letter to Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., Wheeler referred to the execution conducted by South Vietnamese police chief, Brig. Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan, who shot the Viet Cong to death in the street.

— Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara will appear before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Feb. 20 to review the 1964 Tonkin Gulf incident. The naval action involving American destroyers and North Vietnamese gunboats led to a major buildup of U.S. military operations in Vietnam. There have been conflicting versions of some aspects of the incident.

Junior College Opponents Ask Ballot Test

POPLAR BLUFF - Opponents of Three Rivers Junior College are reported to be circulating petitions in an effort to place the issue of dissolution of the college district on the April school election ballot in the four counties.

This effort to bring the proposed dissolution to a vote comes in the face of a recent Jackson county circuit court declaratory judgment which held that a junior college district cannot be dissolved under the proposed means.

The Three Rivers Opponents apparently are basing their latest efforts on a Dec. 2, 1966, Missouri Attorney General's opinion which said that a state law for dissolution of six-director (high school) districts also applies to junior college districts. That law states that 100 signatures from electors in the district is all that is required to place the dissolution issue on the school election ballot. A two-thirds majority vote then is needed to dissolve the district.

The Jackson County Circuit Court judgment, issued on Sept. 29, 1967, overturns the Attorney General's ruling, however. The judgment was never appealed and the time limit on such an appeal has expired.

The Jackson County decision came after a citizens group challenged the formation of the Junior College District of Metropolitan Kansas City. The opponents asked for and received the Attorney General's opinion and obtained the 100 signatures on a petition with the intent of placing the proposal on the next school election ballot.

Trustees of the Kansas City college then requested from a declaractory judgment in favor Circuit Court of Jackson County of the college.

The court ruled that the state law in question (162.451 of the Revised Statutes) does not apply to junior college districts organized under the statute which applies to the Kansas City District. Three Rivers organized under that same statute.

The Jackson County Circuit Court held further that the petition of 100 voters, "which purports to require an election on the dissolution proposition," has no legal effect. The judgment was signed by J. Donald Murphy, Jackson County Circuit Judge.

Merron, a native of Jersey City, N.J., and a veteran of three years covering the Vietnam war, suffered a slight shrapnel wound to the right leg. He did not have to be hospitalized.

Merron was slightly wounded in the cheek by a grenade fragment while with the U.S. 1st Infantry Division a year ago.

Merron said he was hit while he and a group of U.S. Marines were trying to make their way toward the city jail. A Marine about 15 feet from him was killed, and another was badly hurt.

Six Per Cent of Cape College Students Receiving Assistance

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Of a little more than the 6,000 students attending Southeast Missouri State College today, about six and one-half per cent are receiving financial assistance in some form. Financial assistance and the job of administering aid, through a financial aide coordinator, consequently, has become more than a cursory task these days.

Each week the coordinator's office receives requests for assistance. If your son or daughter lacks the necessary funds, or if you're a student and can't afford to go to college, here are some of the programs that could help you.

The Office of Education lists six programs through which students can receive aid. They include National Defense Student Loans, Guaranteed Loans for College Students, Guaranteed Loans for Vocational Students, Loans for Higher Education to Cuban Exiles, and College Work-Study and Educational Opportunity Grants. In addition to these six general plans, the Office lists 21 specific areas where students can acquire financial help. Among these include fellowships in education, study abroad, foreign language study, teacher exchange programs, fellowships in library and informational science, and undergraduate research training.

National defense student loans: Under this program (commonly known as NDEA) an undergraduate may borrow up to $1,000 each academic year to a maximum of $5,000. The repayment period and interest do not begin until nine months after the student ends his studies. The loans bear interest at the rate of three per cent a year on the unpaid balance, and repayment of the principal may be extended over a 10-year period.

If a borrower becomes a full-time teacher in an elementary or secondary school, or in an institution of higher education, as much as half the loan may be forgiven at the rate of 10 per cent for each year of teaching service. If the borrower is in the service, continuing his studies, is in the Peace Corps, or the Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), he need not make any payment on the principal or the interest.

Guaranteed Student Loans: Under this program the college need only certify that the applicant is in good standing in the college, is fully enrolled (15 hours or more) and can show need of financial assistance. The student then negotiates a loan with an eligible lending institution of his own choice. The loan, if granted, may be guaranteed by a state or private nonprofit agency which is backed up by a $120 million fund from the federal government. If the student's family income is under $15,000 a year, the government will pay the interest on the unpaid balance up to six per cent, from the start. The borrower pays 3 per cent after graduation.

A student may borrow for each year up to $1,000 for undergraduate study and up to $1,500 for graduate study.

Although the plan at first glance seems a blessing in disguise, financial directors throughout the country have been displeased as a whole with the manner in which the money has at times been loaned.

One of the most frequent arguments against the plan is that the loan, instead of being one of need has become a loan of "convenience". That is, in some cases, families who might not need the money, or at least part of the entire loan, utilize it for some other purpose than financial aid for their son or daughter.

In a recent newsletter from the United Student Aid Fund, the editor states:

With no consideration of whether the student and his family actually need a loan purely for educational purposes, and with most interest payments absorbed by the government, student borrowing can be expected to rise swiftly to $3 billion or more annually --student loans could soon amount to between a fifth and a third as much as all installment loans total today.

Also, many opponents of the program contend that much of the trouble lies behind the fact that the financial aids coordinator cannot exercise the power, as laid down by the law, to control excessive abuses of the program. For example, there have been instances when banks have increased the amount of the loan request over and above what the financial aids director had approved. One student requested a thousand-dollar loan. The financial aids coordinator believed his "show of actual need" warranted a loan of $700 to fulfill his college expenses for that year. However, the bank returned the approval papers to the college for a $300 increase at $1,000. It was found out later, after careful investigation, that the student had a $300 loan on an automobile with the lending bank which had not yet been paid.

Another argument against the loans arises from the same fact that financial aids coordinators don't have enough power under the guaranteed loan program. Often times students have no conception of what a loan really is . . . that is: borrowing money that eventually must be paid back, most of the time at an increase (because of interest) on the principal.

Many students, according to some aids directors, treat the loan as if it were a lump sum of money which just fell from the nearest willow tree adjoining the administration building. When these occasions happen, and it becomes clear that the student, and perhaps the parents, need some financial counseling, he is helpless -- under the guaranteed loan program -- to set a course of action commensurate with the type of counseling that is needed.

From the standpoint of the administrator, the guaranteed loan program sometimes lends itself to an effective bartering tool to attract students. Because, some contend, the money is so loose, there is great fluctuation in its use. Some colleges choose not to use it, because they believe that the student needs a college education and the necessary securities (food, shelter, and clothing) that accompany such a venture.

Other colleges, which perhaps are not so fiscal minded, choose to let the floodgates down. In figures compiled in 1965, the range of loan amounts in Missouri went from $74,447 at one state college to $633,359 at another. Most state colleges generally have about the same enrollments, give or take a few thousand students. Some believe this pattern of loan lending could lead to buying a student body.

Another disparity exists with standards. Many colleges require the student to be in good academic standing (C or better) before he can acquire a loan. However, in some states, as in Illinois, "There are no minimum academic requirements. If a student is eligible for enrollment, he is eligible for an Illinois Guaranteed Loan."

In a January editorial from the United Student Aid Fund newsletter, these facts appeared:

1. The Higher Education Act, which established the guaranteed loan program, set off a boom in such loans, as was intended. The annual volume jumped from $150 million in 1964-65 to more than double that amount in 1965-66.

2. A loan which the borrower pays no interest while in school and only 3 per cent when he gets out is attractive. Families could turn a profit just by keeping their own money in the bank at 5 per cent inererest while covering an equivalent part of their school expenses through guaranteed loans.

3. More and more students are borrowing automatically up to the full $1,000 limit. Example: at one school, $15 million was loaned in the academic years, 1960-66. In 1967 alone the same amount was loaned. In just 3 months in 1968, the same amount was loaned.

4. The Office of Education estimates that at the present rate of loaning in ten years the outstanding money will reach the 23 billion dollar figure, about a fifth of all the installment credit now outstanding in the entire country.

Guaranteed Loans for Vocational students: Students preparing for vocations at the postsecondary school level may apply for loans knder the Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act of 1965.

To be eligible students are not required to have graduated from high school, but must be able to benefit from the course of instruction. They may borrow a maximum of at least $1,000 a year for two years with the exact limit varying from state to state. Recipients are required to carry at least one half a full study load at a business, trade, or technical school. The repayment period may cover from three to six years, but other provisions are similar to those for Guaranteed Loans which apply to college students.

College work-study: Grants are made to institutions of higher education to assist in the operation of work-study programs for their students who are in need of the earnings for part-time employment in order to pursue a graduate or undergraduate course of study. Students may work up to 15 hours weekly while attending classes full-time. During the summer or other vacation periods, they may work up to 40 hours a week. On - campus jobs include work in dining halls, laboratories, libraries, and maintenance facilities.

Educational Opportunity grants: While most federal assistance is in the form of loans or jobs rather than outright grants, this program provides direct awards for college students of exceptional financial need. Such students, if they should show academic or creative promise, may receive the grant through their college. These consist of from $200-$800 a year, and may be no more than one-half the total assistance given to the student by his institution. A recipient must be enrolled full-time and be an undergraduate.

Brother of Pair Missing in Cave Dies in Auto Crash

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) - Michael T. Hoag, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hoag of Hannibal, was killed Saturday night in a two-car collision near Lexington, S. C.

He worked in the communications section of the state prison at Columbia, S. C.

Two of his younger brothers, 13-year-old Joey and 11-year-old Billy Hoag, disappeared last May 10 and presumably were lost in a cave on Hannibal's south side along with 14-year-old Craig Dowell. The three never have been found.

Blaiberg's Hospital Stay Prolonged

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) --The hospital discharge of the only surviving heart transplant patient is being put off "for at least some weeks, maybe a month," his wife reported Monday.

Doctors at Groote Schuur Hospital had hoped Philip Blaiberg, 58, could go home in mid-February. But on Monday a hospital spokesman announced that fluid has formed again around the patient's transplanted heart.

"This is not giving undue cause for alarm," the spokesman said. "His condition at the moment is satisfactory."

Doctors were draining off the fluid with needles inserted into the sac surrounding the heart. Fluid was first reported to have developed nine days after the retired Cape Town dentist was given the heart of a South African mulatto Jan. 2.

Report Fourth Pueblo Parley

Poverty Revamp Begins

Circuit Judge Marshall Craig was nominated by petition as a board member from Scott county to the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, currently in the process of reorganizing.

Donald Fulton, principal of Lincoln School and former DAEOC board member from Scott county, called a meeting of interested Sikeston residents Tuesday night at Sikeston High School.

He explained that since the General Electric consulting firm completed a study of the DAEOC operations in Portageville it has set new rules for electing board members. The old board has been dissolved.

DAEOC was the co-ordinating headquarter for Office of Economic Opportunity antipoverty program in six Bootheel counties.

In the past, each of the six county OEO boards elected four members to DAEOC.

Gross dissatisfaction developed in the administration of the program and federal funding of the Neighborhood Service Centers, the focal point of carrying out the antipoverty programs, resulted.

Funding was cut as of Dec. 31, and most of the NSCs in the six counties of Scott, New Madrid, Mississippi, Stoddard, Pemiscot and Dunklin have closed. A few have remained open and are conducting some programs with volunteer help. The center in Sikeston has closed.

Before the NSCs and the antipoverty programs can be refunded, the election of new board members to DAEOC is required, Fulton said.

The study group set the following guidelines for elections to the board. It will consist of not less than 24 nor more than 30 members.

Six board members shall be appointed by the county court, one from each county. The petition started last night recommended Craig be appointed by the Scott county court.

Three other board members shall be appointed by the Missouri Welfare Department, the Department of Education, and the State Employment Service. Each agency shall appoint one board member.

Nine other board members shall be elected by persons in the poverty groups of the counties by Democratic process. New Madrid, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties will each select two board members elected by poor persons, while Scott, Mississippi and Stoddard counties will each elect one.

The counties electing two poverty representatives were determined to have the greatest concentrations of poverty in the area, Fulton said.

Election places have not been decided yet, but a primary type of election will be held Feb. 15, with the final election to be held March 4.

In addition to the nine board members to be elected by persons in the poverty grouping and the nine members to be appointed by the county courts and the state agencies, the board will consist of at least six other members to be elected by the above 18.

These other six members are to be representatives of civic, business or professional organizations.

Fulton urged persons attending the meeting to organize a committee to nominate a person from Sikeston to be considered by the 18 members in March. The Rev. Joseph Wagner, pastor of the First Methodist Church, and Fred Steward Jr. said they would form a committee and contact civic groups here for a nominee.

The DAEOC board when it is reorganized may consist of 30 members. Six board slots will be open to allow for any group who feels they are not properly represented to petition the board for representatives.

Eddie Schrader

New Scout Post for Schader

Eddie R. Schrader, Okeechobee district Boy Scout executive, will assume the position of the Osage district scout executive in Poplar Bluff March 1.

The announcement was made by Joe Welborn, Bloomfield, president of the Southeast Missouri Council, and Richard Ray, Cape Girardeau, Scout executive of the council.

The Osage district includes Butler, Wayne, Carter and Ripley counties. The district has 895 Scouts including Cubs, Boy Scouts and Explorers.

Schrader, 25, was born and reared in Sikeston. He graduated from high school in 1959. He worked for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Bank of Sikeston, and the post office, before he became the Scout executive of the Okeechobee District in May of 1965.

He worked in the small loan department and as a teller at the Bank of Sikeston from May of 1963 until June of 1964. He then worked for the post office until he took the Scout executive job.

Since he assumed his present position, the Scout membership in the Okeechobee district has increased from 1,071 boys to 1,470. The number of Cub packs, Scout troops and Explorer posts have increased from 52 to 66. An outstanding program has been provided the boys and units during this period, Ray said.

As a volunteer scouter Schrader served in leadership capacities including chairman of district activities and organization and extension chairman.

Schrader is married to the former Janice K. Walker. They live at 626 Lanning. They have two children: Tresa Kay, 5, and Bryan, 1. They are members of the Lutheran Church. He is a member of the Rotary club.

The Schraders will move to Poplar Bluff.

The Osage district is an area where the council is trying to increase Scouting activities.

An attempt will be made to employ a Scout executive for the Okeechobee District at the earliest possible date, Welborn said.

Pat Fisher to Address Kiwanis

The Kiwanis club met Tuesday at the Holiday Inn.

President Fred Steward Jr. presided.

Pat Fisher of the St. Louis Football Cardinals will speak at the club's farmers night Feb. 20.

Jerry Hampton, Scoutmaster of Boy Scout troop 41, was inducted.

The membership application of the Rev. Durward Penry, pastor of the First Christian Church, was accepted.

Electronic Equipment for County Clerk

NEW MADRID - The county clerk's office will change to electronic equipment this year reports Jesse H. Wilkins, county clerk. This will involve a computer with a memory bank, which will be used in making up the county tax books.

At the time the levies are computed, based on valuations of the real estate, personal property, merchants and manufacturers, railroad and utilities and placed on the tax books, the machine also will duplicate the computations and place them on tax statements and receipts for the county collector, which will reduce errors and cut down the time required in making up the tax books, Wilkins said.

Immediately after the tax books are compiled, the machine will be used the balance of the year in abstracting tax receipts as they are collected in the collector's office.

Wilkins said his deputy, Jimmy W. Farrenburg, will be schooled in the use of the machine this spring. The machine was purchased last year, and is being assembled especially for New Madrid County.

Pueblo Victims Identified

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Pentagon today identified the dead crewman of the USS Pueblo, the intelligence ship captured by the North Koreans, as Duane D. Hodges, a fireman from Creswell, Ore.

It also gave the names of three injured crewmen:

Fireman Apprentice Steven E. Woelk, described as seriously injured.

Radioman 3.C. Charles H. Crandell and Marine Sgt. Robert J. Chicca, both described as slightly injured.

The Pentagon gave the home town of Hodges only. It said no further identification will be provided for the other three men under standard Pentagon policy applying to all missing or captured military personnel.

At Creswell, Ore., relatives said Hodges was 21 and a 1965 graduate of Creswell high school, where he played four sports. He entered the Navy about 18 months ago.

There was no word as to how young Hodges died.

The questions raised by the Pueblo's capture off the North Korean port of Wonsan continue to echo in Congress.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., asks why the United States, with its vast radar tracking network, can't say for certain the Pueblo did not violate North Korea's territorial waters.

The South Dakota Republican posed his question as Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., speculated the administration is preparing to apologize to North Korea for violating the sea limit in hopes of getting back the ship and survivors of her 83-man crew.

Top administration officials have said the Pueblo maintained radio silence from Jan. 10-21, before the North Koreans captured her Jan. 23, so it cannot be said for sure she did not violate the Communist nation's sea limit.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen told a Tuesday news conference: "There was some monitoring done and there are some tapes. I think most everything was known."

But Dirksen, who attended White House briefings on the Pueblo affair, declined to amplify his statements further.

Mundt said he is asking the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to add a question about radar coverage to a list of queries on 20 general areas of the Pueblo incident already submitted to the State Department.

Mundt said it seems logical that if American intelligence knows the position of Soviet intelligence ships in all parts of the world—as he said it claims—it could keep track of one of its own electronic vessels without radio communications.

Sen. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., said in a separate interview the same question is likely to be explored at a select committee's briefing by the Central Intelligence Agency on the Pueblo matter.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said on a national broadcast Sunday that they cannot say beyond a shadow of a doubt the Pueblo did not enter territorial waters. Such an assertion, they said, must await release of the captain and crew.

The North Koreans have made an American apology and punishment of the Pueblo's captain basic demands for the release of the captive Americans.

Viet North Use Tanks in Special Forces Camp Raid

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese sent their Russian tanks into the Vietnam war today, apparently for the first time, against South Vietnamese irregulars and their American Green Beret advisers fighting furiously to hold onto a Special Forces camp in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

Reports from Da Nang said a Special Forces sergeant had radioed that only five of the 25 Americans in the Lang Vei camp were still alive—he and four others in the headquarters bunker. He reported a knocked-out tank was on top of the bunker.

The U.S. Command said Lang Vei's defenders destroyed five of the nine Russian T34 tanks sent against them.

The massive assault on Lang Vei, four miles west of Khe Sanh, could be the kickoff of the long anticipated offensive along the northern frontier, which Gen. William C. Westmoreland has predicted will be the biggest enemy push of the war, exceeding the furious assaults on South Vietnamese cities and towns last week.

The campaign against the cities, the largest enemy offensive so far, has died down at most points after eight days, but Viet Cong forces still fought stubbornly in Saigon and Hue.

The U.S. Command said the enemy death toll in the past eight days reached 22,748 by midnight Tuesday. It said 1,768 allied troops have been killed, including 614 Americans and 1,130 South Vietnamese.

Military spokesmen said the North Vietnamese began pounding the Lang Vei camp with artillery at dusk Tuesday, then launched the ground attack about two hours later. The nine Russian tanks rumbled east along Highway Nine, leading the infantrymen through the camp's minefields and three lines of barbed wire.

The camp's garrison—300-400 South Vietnamese and Montagnard irregulars and their American advisers—took cover in their bunkers, and North Vietnamese sprayed the bunkers with flamethrowers to drive the defenders back from rifle and machine-gun ports.

U.S. headquarters said radio contact was lost with the Americans in the camp at 3:10 a.m. but was re-established at 4:20.

U.S. Marine artillery at Khe Sanh fired tons of shells almost on top of the camp after the Green Berets called for close in support. Air Force and Marine fighter-bombers raked the area with bombs, cannon and machineguns.

A U.S. spokesman said heavy contact continued through the night and diminished about 11 a.m., but some fighting continued. U.S. headquarters said radio contact was being maintained throughout the day.

South Vietnamese headquarters said the irregulars also were still holding out in the camp and were in radio communication with an observation plane.

The camp was kept under aerial observation all day, but visibility was poor. A ground patrol in the area also reported radio contact with men inside the camp.

The camp is 20 miles south of the demilitarized zone and about four miles east of the Laotian border. The tanks which rumbled in from the direction of Laos weighed 30 to 32 tons and carried 76mm or 85mm guns, U.S. headquarters said.

There was no word on the fate of 2,500 Laotian refugees, including 500 Laotian army soldiers, who fled to Lang Vei two weeks ago to escape an attack by North Vietnamese troops.

Communist gunners also shelled the Khe Sanh base, held by about 5,000 Marines, for about five hours Tuesday night. Crews went out during the barrage to repair craters in the air strip.

New Madrid County Budget Cuts Costs

By NADINE TOWNSEND

NEW MADRID - The County Court has approved the county budget for 1968, and lowered anticipated expenditures, reports Jesse H. Wilkins, county clerk and budget officer.

The total expenditures for 1968 were set at a miximum of $402,076.15, as compared with $413,138.86 for 1967. This is unusual in view of the fact that election costs were increased by some $12,000, since there were no elections in 1967.

Other increases in the budget included pay raises for all deputies and appointees, plus a provision to place all county employes under a retirement system, which will take effect on April 1.

An appropriation of $30,000 was made for construction of buildings on the airport, when completed.

A breakdown of proposed expenditures for the current year, with actual expenditures for the prior year in parenthesis are as follows:

Salaries, fees and office expenses $201,229.70 ($171,189.49); court administration $6,000 ($1,849.90); election cost $15,900 ($430.50); public welfare and health services $59,750 ($52,317.29); other contingent expenses and obligations $106,362.64 ($111,710.08); emergency fund $12,833.81 (none); legal unpaid obligations, none (none).

The county road and bridge budget for the current year was fixed at $277,111.04, as compared to $250,008 in 1967, while actual expenditures for the prior year were $227,214.67. The increase in this budget in part is due to improving roads in the industrial park and relocating some roads that may be affected by the new aluminum plant locating in the county.

Wilkins said the proposed tax rates will remain the same, the county rate of 40 cents was recommended, which is about 20 per cent under rates of most adjoining counties, and a rate of 30 cents for roads and bridges, as compared with a 35 cent maximum rate permissible.

Other budgets forwarded to Haskell Holman, state auditor, included county library in which the proposed expenditures were $51,897.98; county health center $82,577.97; Johnson grass control fund $35,235; drainage district no. 29 (sinking) $5,130; drainage district no. 14 maintenance $1,660; drainage district no. 18 maintenance $5,710; drainage district no. 35 maintenance $1,560; drainage district no. 36 maintenance $2,680, and drainage district no. 37 maintenance $1,400.

One other budget for drainage district no. 29 maintenance was taken under advisement, pending a study of any proposed improvements.

Propsals Rap Drugs And Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, calling federal enforcement of narcotic laws "fragmented," asked Congress today to create "a new and powerful Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs."

He also called for an antiriot law that would make it a felony to cross state lines to incite or take part in riots.

In a message to Congress, Johnson said hallucinogenic drugs such as marijuana and LSD present "an insidious and growing threat to our nation's health, particularly the health of young people."

He called for transferring the Treasury Department's Bureau of Narcotics and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's drug abuse control powers to the Justice Department to create the new bureau to clamp down on drugs.

Johnson also called for:

— Top priority to battle organized crime through the Justice Department's series of strike forces "in cities beset by racketeering."

— New laws to make it a federal crime to engage in gambling "as a substantial business affecting interstate commerce." Also, he asked for a measure to preserve the government's taxing authority over gamblers in such a way that it will agree with the Constitution.

The President asked for $100 million for his safe streets legislation. This is double the amount he proposed last year in a measure, still in the Senate, that would provide grants to state and local police agencies to improve techniques and raise law enforcement salaries.

The total federal anticrime effort, Johnson said, would cost about $557 million, a 28 per cent increase above the current year's $435 million.

Johnson said "this year America must decisively capture the initiative in the battle against crime," with the major effort to be supplied by local law enforcement.

"The federal government must never assume the role of the nation's policeman," he said.

Johnson called on each mayor and governor to review not only state and local criminal laws to be certain they are "adapted to the criminal justice problems of the 20th Century," but also to review their correctional systems, courts and "fully support their local police not only in public statements, but with the funds necessary for adequate salaries, first rate training and the most modern equipment."

Johnson described his safe streets legislation as "the cornerstone of the federal anticrime effort to assist local law enforcement."

Johnson said the first step in the federal anticrime drive is better coordination, and he said that he had signed today an executive order designating the attorney general to act as a coordinator of all federal criminal enforcement activities.

Protest March Halted

SEOUL (AP) — The United States and North Korea held their fourth secret meeting at Panmunjom today on the seizure of the Pueblo, South Korean sources reported. U.S. troops halted 400 South Korean students trying to march on Panmunjom to protest the negotiations.

The South Korean sources said the secret meeting preceded an open session and asserted the United States handed over an apology to the Communists. A U.S. military spokesman denied this. But he did not deny a secret meeting was held.

About five miles south of Panmunjom, U.S. Army troops clashed with demonstrating South Korean college students who tried to march across Freedom Bridge.

South Korean police said the soldiers fired 20 warning shots, then used rifle butts to halt the students in a two-hour melee. They reported at least 24 students were injured, nine seriously. A statement from the 2nd U.S. Infantry Division, whose unit was involved, said no one was injured.

Most of the students were rounded up by South Korean national police, a 2nd Division spokesman said.

A few students actually crossed the well-guarded bridge but were headed off by U.S. troops and South Korean police.

Even had all the students crossed the bridge, they would have been unable to reach Panmunjom. The way is barred by a fence 10 feet high and gates to the meeting site are heavily guarded.

The students were demonstrating against U.S.-North Korean talks for the release of the USS Pueblo and her crew. Police said the demonstrators were trying to march over the bridge across the Imvin river to the conference site at Panmunjom, where U.S. and North Korean officials met today at an open meeting of the Military Armistice Commission. But the Pueblo was not mentioned at the meeting.

Anti-American demonstrations broke out in Seoul this week for the first time in five years after South Korean officials accused the United States of slighting South Korea's cause in the secret talks American officials have been holding at Panmunjom with the North Koreans since last Friday.

Korean officials did an about-face today and withdrew much of their criticism. But the clash between the students and American soldiers was certain to inflame public opinion.

The armistice commission meeting today touched briefly on the Communist commando raid on Seoul Jan. 21, which the lone Communist raider captured said was aimed at killing President Chung Hee Park.

The South Korean government had contended that the U.S. government should be paying more attention to the assassination raid and the heightened North Korean infiltration across the demilitarized zone than to the Pueblo.

In Washington, the Pentagon announced it has received the name of one Pueblo crewman who died and three who were injured when the North Koreans seized the intelligence-gathering ship Jan. 23. The Pentagon said one of the injured men was in serious condition and the other two were in grave condition.

Before the battle at the Freedom Bridge, a highly placed South Korean official had said today there was little dispute between the U.S. and Korean governments on the handling of the current crisis with North Korea. A high foreign ministry official told Korean newsmen his government had been consulted before each of the U.S.-North Korean secret talks and was informed fully of the results afterward by U.S. officials.

These attempts to calm the rising resentment against South Korea's chief ally and foreign supporter contrasted sharply with earlier officials complaints that South Korea's case was being neglected and the United States, in its desire to get the Pueblo and its crew back, was preparing to make dangerous concessions to the Communists.

The New York Times reported from Washington that the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise had been ordered to withdraw from a position off the North Korean coast in an apparent gesture of conciliation to encourage North Korea to free the Pueblo and her crew.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
LET'S KEEP THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS THROUGH 1968

Now let us look at the life and the teachings of Him whose birthday we celebrate at Christmas time. Jesus came into the world and He announced to that world, "I have news for you." . . . And Jesus worked his miracles naturally, the miracles of healing, the miracles of feeding were handled by use of the natural forces of life.

Now mark you, Jesus was not making God one whit smaller. I doubt if He would have agreed with the passage in one of the Epistles which speaks of God's "emptying himself" to become a man. For Jesus saw nothing more wonderful than a human being--that was the news he had for us. There is nothing more wonderful than a human being; there is nothing more wonderful than love.

PENSION FUND FIXER?

It is now reported that the chairman of the U.S. Civil Service Commission, John W. Macy, jr., is disturbed about the pension fund for retired Federal Government employes.

The fund, Mr. Macy warns, could become bankrupt before 1987 unless additional financing is obtained. The unfunded liability, he explains, was more than $48 billion as of last June 30.

His worries prompts the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, speaking for private businesses, to observe that the condition of the federal retirement fund could not possibly be very reassuring to Congress, which is considering proposed legislation to give the Federal Government control of all private pension funds.

Honesty in government labeling is as important as honesty in labeling goods in commerce."

PRESIDENT'S WEAK-KNEED STANCE

Lyndon B. Johnson went on networks Friday afternoon, presumably to reassure the American people over the highjacking of the USS Pueblo and its 83-man crew.

He reassured no one, unless the Korean Reds and the capitals of Communism in Moscow and Peking.

The President spoke of the "wanton and aggressive act" in the North Korean capture of the United States intelligence ship which he said took place in international waters.

What does he plan to do about it? Apparently nothing but talk and make empty gestures toward the United Nations. He offered no clear determination to get back the Pueblo. He mentioned "design" efforts. He added the issue had been referred to the UN Security Council.

The Security Council, despite a flat Soviet rejection of United States charges, agreed to discuss the Pueblo seizure. But if the President thinks any solution can evolve from the Security Council - in the teeth of Red Russia's antagonism and customary vituperation - he is dismally naive.

All of the UN can be expected to do is debate the whole problem to impasse, with the usual rifling of invective and lie-giving. The UN is incompetent now to solve any kind of crisis, and if Mr. Johnson waits for effective action from in this quarter he will let the USS Pueblo rot its hull out.

The President's attitude was dishearteningly weak. Certainly he and the nation are posed with a grim, tough problem.

But he offered no leadership when direction and purpose are critically needed.

Instead he made a plea to North Korea to relinquish our ship and men. He urged the "whole world community" to persuade Korean Communists to send our ship and crew back.

There is no remote possibility the "world" would comply, or that North Korea would pay the slightest attention to any plea -unless from Russia or Mao China.

What a miserable pass has the United States come to when its President begs before a tinpot nation, which has pirated our ship on the high seas in an overt act of aggression?

We must get this vessel back fast, along with the men, by whatever means are necessary. If we don't show decision and courage and vision in this latest Red provocation, we shall be considered a paper-eagle pushover by every chauvinistic state in the world. And World War III will move tragically closer.

On Valentine's Day
Cards come to you.

People have been celebrating this festival of love and affection since long before there were Valentine cards -- in fact, before it took its present name.

Back in ancient Rome, people celebrated a festival called Lupercalia every Feb. 15. It honored Juno and Pan, and was celebrated with feasting, dancing and revelry. After the spread of Christianity the festival was changed to Feb. 14, the feast day of two Christian martyrs, both named Valentine; but the sentimental meaning of the Old festival has remained to the present time.

People have been giving gifts at Valentine's Day for centuries, but the custom of sending sentimental messages developed gradually with the mail service.

The oldest Valentine cards in America are some small cards with German script, probably made by nuns and monks in the early 1700's.

The custom became very popular in North America during the 1800's. Esther Howland is credited with being the first person in the United States to publish Valentines, in 1840.

Many Valentines of that period were hand painted. They usually showed a fat cupid whose arrows pierced a heart. Some had satin, mother-of-pearl, tassels, imitation gems, sea shells and even dried flowers and seaweed.

Magazines of the 1850's gave glowing accounts of the celebration of St. Valentine's Day. In one, an editor remarked: "A blessing on St. Valentine, the patron of the Day fraught with many heart flutterings and heart enjoyments!"

Many of these old Valentine cards have been saved and are quite valuable today in cash. You may wish to save the cards you get this Valentine's Day. They too may be very valuable, if only in sentiment.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the nostalgic sights you see, as you drive across our tremendous America, is a parade of abandoned farm households.

The purpose of the fields has not been left. The seed is planted, the land yields.

But, the presence of a people is no longer there. The weathered boards of home look out with eyeless glaze, because when a house loses its windows it is like a human being that lacks a view. The emptiness of purpose makes you feel uncomfortable.

The barns are sometimes more fully employed. They may be stuffed with the current crop as a kind of warehouse, or have silage sticking out of their lonesomeness, but the barns have an emptiness too.

Homes are built to shelter people in them, and barns are built to shelter animals.

When you see a farm home, old-fashioned though it be, that has no human life within it, and a barn behind it that has no animal life within it to feed, you see in essence the American pathway of peril from simplicity to complexity.

Barns have many functions. In the days of an earlier America they were a sanctuary, a duty, a danger and a comfort.

Oh, the barn. . .it had so many things to do. The warm shelter of the animals, smelling of sweat after their work in the fields. . . the warm human companionship of taking care of them, giving them hay or grain, slapping their leathern sides, holding a hand to a muzzle, scratching behind an ear, feeling by palm the marvelous response of flexibility of skin and muscle, a shuddering that flicks a fly off but doesn't tell you to take your hand away.

All together, the feeling of mutuality, for the crop. . . and against the wind.

And if he were weary of the arguments within the house, or the reading of many books and mail order catalogs, a person could cure his loneliness by going out to the barn and listen to the soft restlessness and reassurances of the animals there, their chompings, their shuffle of stompings, their putting up with time.

Barns, like people, have their own character. Although, as a child in Kansas City, I used to go out in summer and play in country barns, the barn that has haunted my life is one that the city itself had surrounded.

It had been, I suppose, as much of a carriage house as a barn. It still held the hover of smell left by long ago horses. It stood behind a great brick house where old people lived but did not come out anymore, and the unplucked grapes were eaten by birds in a sagging arbor.

Although our parents warned us away from the old barn, we children crept into it secretly and made it our favorite playhouse. Upstairs we found it was a citadel of yesterday, a museum of the Confederacy and that family's service to it— a museum hung with souvenirs of a banished glory.

To us it was as if the Civil War were there, not for us to read about, but to play with.

We put our short legs into the long gray pants, hitched them up with one hand, waved the swords that were there. We put our fingers into reluctant, time-stiffened gloves that had held previous fingers in ordeal. We wore indoors in that dusty barn a military hat that had sheltered another head from rainfall in the century before us— or so I think now, being older and more respectful.

We didn't think about who had worn these clothings before us or why they had been kept. They were only there, intruders as we were, to enjoy by play. It is only when you are older that you conjecture about such things as fatefall, cherish and perish.

At the time we played with them, these remnants of before, they were something found by chance. And in the glory of our discovery and the joy of our wearing we did not pause to think of those who had worn these uniforms before.

They were only there, something to play with, and whoever owned the barn had kept them there, and we were only children who had snuck our way into the barn and made games with what we found.

It is very nice to have a barn in your life. It keeps a pleasant musty smell of now and then and always.

SEN. MCCARTHY STRAW IN THE WIND

Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota says he has no illusions about his chances of defeating President Johnson for the Democratic presidential nomination.

His stated reasons for announcing his intention to enter the primaries in four and possible six states as a peace candidate are to give dissenting Democrats someone to rally around, to promote debate within the party over the conduct of the Vietnam war and possibly to pressure the administration into a policy of deescalation, which McCarthy believes offers the best hope for a negotiated settlement.

It is possible he may achieve just the opposite.

Even should he bring the delegates of several states along with him to the Democratic convention next summer, it is a virtually foregone conclusion that Johnson will receive the nomination anyway, as McCarthy himself acknowledges.

Thus the victory of the President in the face of whatever organized opposition the dissidents can muster could be read as a much stronger party endorsement of his conduct of the war than would a routine, rubber-stamped nomination.

This is the dilemma of the Vietnam dissenters within the Democratic ranks. As for the Republicans, it is by no means a foregone conclusion with them that the path to the White House leads through Vietnam.

If six months from now, though, an end to the war is as far from sight as it is now and public confidence in the way it is being run is as unenthusiastic as it is now, and especially if the war's effects on everyman's pocketbook are as unpleasant as they are now, Vietnam will certainly be a key issue in the campaign.

Whether that key should be labeled "Deescalation" or "More of the Same," however, is the question that remains to be answered.

But now that an avowed dove plans to present himself to the people, the Democratic primaries may give a hint to the answer. That is why the Republicans will be watching them as closely as the Democrats to see how McCarthy makes out - to see whether he rides a groundswell of popular peace sentiment or whether he simply drowns.

Dr. Gerald Labiner of Los Angeles had had his car, office and home broken into by narcotics addicts who have stolen his medical bag. This week, Dr. Labiner for the fourth time in six months, bought a new medical bag, this one with a separate pouch. On the bag the doctor has pasted a small sign. "Take the narcotics if you must," it reads. "They're in the small pouch. But please leave the rest of the bag."

When an Indian medicine man needs eagle feathers for a religious ceremony nowadays he does not send out a hunting party to bring down a few birds. (It's illegal to kill an eagle). . . Instead he sends an application to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service in Albuquerque. . . The Service examines the eagle for diseases and pesticide residues. . . Feathers are saved and shipped to Albuquerque from where they are distributed for religious purposes only. . . Indians who want the plumage to perform for tourists are screened out. . . There is a shortage of feathers and all are on a high-priority basis. . .

MORE FLIGHT HOURS REQUIRED FOR SUPERSONIC CRAFT

A total of at least 3400 flight hours will be needed before the U.S. supersonic transport is certified, according to Brig. Gen. Jewell C. Maxwell, Federal Aviation Agency's director of supersonic transport development.

In an address to the National Security Industrial Association, he said this is more than twice the usual time because there is no "real pioneer military model" for the SST.

He also stated that initial flight tests probably will be conducted over the B-70 test range.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Vietnam had priority over Korea for weapons; Soviet has heavy naval strength in North Pacific; U.S. strength is stretched thin.

(Editor's Note: Jack Anderson is now in Korea to report on the seizure of the USS Pueblo and other war tensions in the Far East.)

SEOUL -- Over here where it happened, grim U.S. officers give a different version of the Pueblo incident than the Pentagon has peddled to the public. Those who dare to talk declare bitterly that the spy ship, with its super - secret electronic gear, could have been rescued if our air force squadrons in Korea had not been stripped of planes and weapons.

Only a few token fighter planes --F-104 Starfighters and F-105 Thunderchiefs -- were ready for action when the Pueblo called for help. But, unfortunately, these were armed with nuclear weapons to defend our forces against an invasion. They were not equipped merely to intercept a couple of communist patrol boats off the Korean coast.

The nuclear armaments, of course, give these few fighters tremendous firepower. In theory, this is supposed to provide our 50,000 ground troops in Korea with adequate air protection and still free a maximum number of planes to fight in Vietnam.

It would also seem to commit the United States to a nuclear response in care full-scale fighting should be resumed in this bleak country. What many Americans don't realize is that the Korean war isn't really over. A truce was declared 15 years ago, but the negotiators at Panmunjon still haven't been able to agree upon peace terms.

The reliance on nuclear retaliation has left a critical shortage here of conventional weapons, which have been taken out of the Korean arsenals to supply the desperate needs in Vietnam. As a result, conventional arms couldn't be collected and loaded aboard the available fighter planes in time to stop the seizure of the Pueblo.

Other supplies, including arms, ammunition, vehicles, helicopters and spare parts, have also been diverted to Vietnam. At one time, the two U.S. divisions in Korea had barely enough helicopters between them for minimum peacetime needs. Planes and helicopters frequently are grounded and other equipment is laid up for lack of spare parts.

VIETNAM COMES FIRST

Vietnam also gets first call on men as well as material. The best-trained soldiers and most experienced pilots usually are sent to Saigon, not Seoul.

Thus it happened that the Pueblo's alarm brought no help, and North Korea's challenge caught the United States unprepared. The real lesson of the Pueblo incident, therefore, is that American might is stretched dangerously thin.

To cover up its unpreparedness, the Pentagon has put out the word that the Pueblo was caught by surprise. The approach of North Korean patrol boats, according to the Pentagon version, was mistaken as routine harassment. By the time the crew realized that the North Koreans intended to seize the ship, so the story goes, it was too late to summon military help.

This is disputed by a confidential report which has sent to the White House, detailing the incident. The report, made available to this column, states that two fishing trawlers silently circled the Pueblo about noon on January 22, then departed without incident for Wonsan!

The following noon, a North Korean subchaser circled the Pueblo three times, and on the last circle, signaled the spy ship to heave to or be fired upon. Three patrol boats joined the subchaser an hour later, and two circling MIG fighters appeared overheard.

The confidential report then relates: "One attempt to board the Pueblo by armed personnel was rebuffed. We believe the North Koreans were prepared to fire and that they later did so, but with what effect tried unsuccessfully to board the Pueblo. At about 1:30 p.m., the Pueblo was again directed to stop, and at 1:45 an attempt to board was apparently successful."

Clearly, this strange drama at sea lasted long enough for the nearest U.S. jets, less than 20 minutes away. to have flown to the rescue. But they simply weren't equipped to cope with the emergency.

STRONG RUSSIAN NAVY

There was also some hesitation over whether U.S. planes had authority to attack the North Korean marauders without direct orders from Washington -- which, incidentally, never arrived. U.S. forces can return the fire of any hostile force which shoots first. But planes loaded with nuclear weapons cannot attack without direct orders from the President. Apparently the question arose as to whether the planes could fire substitute conventional armaments without White House approval.

When the United States belatedly reacted, a naval task force was rushed into Korean waters. Yet the only reason the nuclear carrier Enterprise, Frigate Truxton, and two escort ships were available is that they happened to be in the Sea of Japan en route to Vietnam.

In contrast, Russia had several naval vessels in the area, part of a powerful surface and submarine force that is guarding the shipping lanes from Vladivostok to Haiphong. Soviet ships are reported to be carrying sophisticated new military equipment to the North Vietnamese over these sea routes.

Indeed, the Pueblo's principal mission was to minitor this Soviet sea traffic, particularly Russian submarines. Aerial reconnaissance can keep count of the surface ships. But the Pueblo was equipped with secret, sensitive devices, which could identify and track Soviet subs under the sea.

The Pueblo affront, coming at the same time that the British are planning to withdraw their forces east of Suez, is another sober reminder that the West can no longer police the world. The demands of the Vietnam war, for example, have compelled the U.S. to cancel planned fleet visits to Indian ports.

The blunt truth is that the U.S. doesn't have the military force today to oppose communist so-called "wars of liberation" all around the world.

H.L. Hunt Says

A LESSON FROM ARGENTINA

Many citizens are disturbed by what seems to them a decline of self - sufficiency and independence in our country. They see evidence that many fellow citizens would rather get something for nothing than try to be self - sustaining and self - respecting.

A rancher in Argentina, Manuel Quintana saw the same destructive tendencies in some of the youth of his country. He wrote to the Argentine president suggesting that young Argentinians be encouraged to help themselves and get ahead by working hard, instead of relying on the government for everything. He said that what Argentina needed was a "Mentality for Progress."

We would do well to study the ideas of Manuel Quintana. This country needs a "Mentality for Progress." For many years, the government has been encouraging individual citizens to surrender to the government their personal responsibility for their own welfare. We have been told that modern life is too complex for any one person to succeed without a great deal of outside help. We have been told that no man is responsible for his own life, that whatever happens to him, good or evil, is to the credit or the blame of society.

This kind of atmosphere creates a "Mentality of Dependence." Without independence and individual intiative, real progress is impossible. The virtues of courage and hard work that built this country formed a "Mentality of Progress" which brought it to unparalleled heights of prosperity. Those who now scoff at these virtues claim to be "helping" the citizens of the United States. In reality, they are doing Americans the worst kind of harm. H.L.H.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

TROUBLE IN THE WEST

Powerful Labor Coalition Ready to Smash LBJ's Wage Restraints With Aircraft, Space Strikes.

Washington, D.C.: -- President Johnson, who gives some fascinating black-tie dinner parties himself, should well be interested in some sport-shirt dinners thrown the other day by the cultural section of the Teamsters Brotherhood.

Food at the gatherings, thrown by the Western Conference of Teamsters at the Del Webb Towne House in sun-drenched Phoenix, went down well -- but the table talk could provie indigestible to Lyndon Johnson.

The White House might like to know that the host was the cultural avant-garde truck drivers' chief, Einar Mohn, Director of the Teamsters' Western Conference. And his guests included such labor and economic militants as the Machinists' Roy Siemiller, and those philosophers of free spending, Walter Heller and Leon Keyserling.

There is considerable significance, too, in the man who did not come to dinner though he had agreed to attend and speak-- the auto union's Walter Reuther, now hit by tragedy and fatigue.

Those who did come and speak during the week of Jan. 21 guided the Western Conference's "Workshop." What was said on and off the dais positively means a tough workout for President Johnson's policy of wage restraints. He asked last week "in the strongest terms. . .that unions and business firms exercise the most rigorous restraint in their wage and price determinations in 1968."

If any phenomenon, event or signal disclosed that there would not be restraint on the wage front at this time, it was the Teamsters gathering and the men Einar Mohn carefully chose to address his leadership cadres which cover the nation's Western states.

Mohn is not of the breed of Teamsters who traditionally make the headlines. He speaks softly. He moves toughly. He invited Reuther because the Teamsters and the auto union work closely together in Mohn's western domain.

He asked Roy Siemiller because the Teamsters and the International Assn. of Machinists have a mutual assistance pact. Not inconsequential to Mohn is the fact that Roy, as recorded here as early as 1965, is the most daring and most militant of union chiefs in the mass industries.

Mohn gave Siemiller and Reuther star billing by slotting them as the principal speakers on two succeeding nights. Teamsters acting president Frank Fitzsimmons was brushed off with a 20-minute stint early one morning - and he was received by long yawns and perfunctory quiet.

Reuther, Siemiller and Mohn, who together lead almost three million unionists, now have one major campaign in common. Reuther and Siemiller are preparing for their assault on the aerospace industry, most of which sprawls across the Western states. Mohn has pledged them strong support.

This means that three of the land's most powerful labor leaders will be concentrating on the industry which whips out everything in its line from choppers to huge aerial freighters and from lumbering air tankers to missiles and fighter jets.

And it means that the President's wage - price restraint policy will be cracked. Neither Reuther nor Siemiller have the slightest intention of taking less than the auto workers won from the Big Three car makers. This means upwards of $1 an hour or more or, in a 40-hour week, an increase before overtime of $40 a week over the life of the next contract.

In the auto industry, Reuther won a six to seven per cent package. But you ain't seen nothing yet. Just the other day the machinists settled with a General Dynamics Canadian subsidiary, Canadair, Ltd., in Montreal for a 19 per cent wage-fringe package increase.

That's high and Siemiller knows that he can't hit that jackpot in the states. But he'll try for lots more than six per cent.

If he doesn't get it, he'll shut down the aerospace plants. Reuther will go with him. It was Siemiller who tied up the airlines in '66 and the railroads in '67.

True, aerospace has no tight union shop despite the 300,000 members which the IAM and UAW have signed up. True, some men will try to go through the picket lines. And they may well walk into the plants.

Here, then, is where Einar Mohn's Teamsters roll up the supporting cadres. They control the in and out trucks - in with supplies and raw material, out with the finished parts. If they respect the Machinists-auto union picket lines, nothing much will move in and less will flow out.

That will be a tough combination to beat, if Mohn backs up his friends. And since they broke bread, there's no reason now to believe Mohn will break the lines.

(Reuther did not come. He sent a wire asking for a rain check. He got it. His Western friends know how hard Walter was hit by his brother Roy's death. But Reuther did send in Paul Schrade, Director of the UAW's Western Region 6.)

Mohn supported the Machinists during their long 1966 airline strike. He found jobs for the strikers.

Reports are that such support has been promised during the coming crisis season as 8 major aerospace contracts open up between April and November. The Machinists can use backing, especially since the copper strike already has cost them $2 million.

So there is no doubt that this tough-bargaining combination, which will run its joint UAW-IAM strategy conference in Los Angeles at the Hotel Ambassador for three days starting Feb. 26, will crack the wage ceiling. And they will set a pattern.

And this time Lyndon Johnson's headaches will come out of the West.

Jeannette May Cravens Says Vows With Glen H. Graham Jr.

NEW MADRID -- Baskets of white and pink chrysanthemums, backed with lighted tapers in twin candelabra, stood on either side of the altar of the First Presbyterian church, when Miss Jeanette May Cravens became the bride of Glen Harvey Graham, Jr.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. C. Thedford Jan. 27 at 2 p.m.

The former Miss Cravens is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Cravens. Graham's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Graham, Sr. of Matthews.

Mrs. Algie Edwards and Mrs. Charlie Glenn sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer". They were accompanied by Mrs. Jesse Wilkins, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length A-line gown of white peau de soie. The empire-styled bodice was overlaid with white re-embroidered lace and featured a scalloped neckline. The bell sleeves were elbow-length and scalloped. The skirt was accented at the waist with a bow in front. A matching train was attached to the back of the bodice.

Her headress was a crown of white orchids securing fingertip veil of white bridal illusion.

She carried a cascade of white frenched carnations, centered with a white orchid. The bouquet was accented with white satin streamers tied in lovers' knots.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Julie Cravens, as bridesmaid. She wore a floor-length A-line gown of deep red velvet. The empire bodice had a round neckline and elbow-length bell sleeves. A bow and streamers enhanced the waist in the front. Her headdress was a matching bow. She wore white wrist-length gloves and carried one long stemmed pink rose, with streamers tied in lovers' knots.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church basement. The bride's table was covered with white brocade, overlaid with white net, caught with white wedding bells at each end. A silver punch service and three tiered wedding cake, topped with a bridal couple, appointed the table.

Presiding at the bride's table were Miss Sharon Sullivan and Miss Rosie Kertz, both of Ste. Genevieve. Miss Diane Graham of Matthews, sister of the groom, was in charge of the guest book.

For an undisclosed wedding trip, the bride wore a pink crepe shift with long sleeves and roll collar, matching accessories and the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple is residing at apartment 1, 518 South Kingshighway, Sikeston. Mrs. Graham is a senior at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau and will continue her studies. Graham is employed with the highway department.

Square Dance Caller Returns From Ohio

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Volner returned Sunday night from a weekend trip to Ohio where Volner called two dances. On Friday night, he called the Caller of the Month dance in Akron for a closed club of 100 couples.

Volner was chosen as the Caller of the Month in the Akron area when he was first in that area in February, 1967, at which time he was booked for this dance by one of the best-known choreographers of square dancing who workshops all the new square dance calls before they are introduced to the dancers by the National Callers.

While in Akron, Volner also booked the Akron Spring Festival to be held in April, 1969, which he will call with another national caller. This is one of Akron's biggest festivals held each spring and is attended by approximately 2000 dancers. Volner is also booked in Akron again in October, 1968 and February 1960.

On Saturday, the Volners drove to Cleveland where he called for a closed club consisting of approximately 20 squares. Then on Sunday evening, they returned to Granite City, Ill., where Volner called for his "B-Sharp Invitational Club" which dances once a month and is for advanced dancers only. Visitors attending this dance were Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Moore of Sikeston and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stricklin of Blytheville, Ark.

Indians Trim Dogs 74-71

Kennett went one up in the battle with the Sikeston Bulldogs last night, taking a 74-71 SEMO basketball conference win at the Armory and ending all hopes of the league crown.

Sikeston, who lost to these same Indians two weeks ago ran into a hot shooting crew who hit 53 per cent for the game and an amazing 69 the first half in which the Dogs strugged for a field goal, netting but 11 the majority of those on fast break layins.

The Bulldogs staggered the Indians in an early mid-season, clash in the Bloomfield invitational tournament but got their ears pinned back by them in the Poplar Bluff invitation and again last night.

It was a rought night on the court with the taller Indians taking advantage of their three inch height edge and physical strength to tussle past the Dogs for layin after layin.

One could not blame the defense of the Dogs last night for the layins the Indians were getting. They just got pushed out of the way and under the basket.

Mentioning defense..The Dogs second half try surprised many as they halted the Indians' offense while trimming a 17-point lead to two with 31 seconds remaining before a pair of foul shots combined with a technical ended all Dog hopes although it netted a free throw late in the game to cut to three points the Indians' lead.

Kennett shot 68 per cent from the charity line from where it claimed victory, netting 20 charity shots to the Dogs 13. The Dogs netted two more field goals than did the Indians.

Gary Wiss and Fred Townes, who had early first half scoring trouble, were mainly responsible for the second half scoring surge and defensive work. The two, who hold the Dogs together, gained spirit in the second half and played defense resembling that of their earlier mid-season stride.

Wiss and Townes first half shots rimmed the goal time and time again, accounting for 29 per cent first half accuracy and 41 per cent overall.

Sikeston had three scores in double figures with Wiss regaining his stride and dumping in 27. Townes added 19.

Guard Dennis Senlling turned in a 12 point night.

Kennett had four scores in double figures, led by Ricky Cash's 22 points. Mike Tweedy, Paul Watson and Leonard Fingers added 18-15 and 10.

The Indians pulled out a 42-37 junior varsity win.

Rebs Win League Title

DEXTER -- Richland ran up a 30-26 half lead and held on for its 18th basketball victory of the season and the Stoddard county conference title last night, beating Dexter 66-56. It has lost five games.

Steve Scott provided the scoring punch with 15 points while teammates Dean Williamson, Rick Fowler and Billy Lewis provided the rebounding.

Dexter took a 13-12 first quarter lead but fell back at the half and was never able to regain its poise.

The Rebel twins, Larry and Gary Brown, tormented the Bearcats guards, grabbing steals and forcing them into a number of floor mistakes.

Harlan Guethle and Darrell Dixon scored 16 points each in leading Dexter's bid for its 13th win. Dexter is 12-8 now.

Dexter opened the night with a 45-27 junior varsity win led by Roderman's 18 points.

Ike Cards Ace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower shot his first hole in one Tuesday, carding an ace on the par-3, 13th hole at Seven Lakes Country Club, a club spokesman said.

"This is the first one I've ever made," Eisenhower said to his companions.

He used a No. 9 iron to make the 104-yard shot.

The 77-year-old Eisenhower's total score was not announced, but he scored an eagle on the par-4 No. 8 hole and barely missed a hole in one on the 18th.

Bloomfield, Howardville

Lose Intra-Class Games

It's that time of the year! And it didn't wait until the last week of basketball action. . . it arrived early. . . Mr. Upset.

He arrived on the Southeast Missouri prep cage scene last night and assisted New Madrid and Advance in posting wins over intra-class foes.

Although it might not have been upsets in some books it has to be somewhat of small upsets as Bloomfield and Howardville were the victims.

With the class S and M regionals a pair of weeks away these wins are bound to have some hold back on the losers seeding and are aiming to help the winners, who have been bounding into the winners circle with accuracy.

Advance took its class S win over the highly touted Hawks on a layin by Mark Richmond, who scored a layin with six seconds to go in the game after he grabbed a loose ball after a jump ball.

John Moroni, Terry Daniels and Tony Jenkins scored 16 points each for Advance in leading the scoring while three others shared in the point making, two of those with double figure marks.

Nathanial Thomas topped Howardville scorers with 23 points.

A 14-point third period along with a good defensive effort enabled New Madrid to take a 41-37 win over Bloomfield.

New Madrid fell back 9-2 in the first quarter, failing to hit from the field with accuracy and trailed 17-10 at half before surging ahead 24-20 and holding that lead as both teams opened up their offense a little in the final period and scored 17 points each.

Tucker and Ross paced the winning attack with 12 points each. The Indians defense held the high scoring Glenn "Rawhide" Williamson to 11 points.

Bloomfield won the junior varsity meeting 44-29 and Howardville claimed a 58-56 JV win.

Advance's win was its 11th of the season, moving it to the .500 mark for the season.

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — The food is great and the beds okay but there's another problem at the Winter Olympics village.

Traffic jams on the elevators are causing sportsmen to be late for training and meals.

Each of the 12-story apartment buildings in the village has only two automatic elevators which start skipping floors as soon as they get loaded.

It prompted the British team to post an appeal in its elevators reading "Look here, boys — this is serious. Everybody wants to be on time. Please avoid waiting by not occupying the lift unnecessarily."

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Paul "Biff" Lowry Jr., 40, Tuesday was named general manager of the Lexington Trots Breeders Association and Tattersalls Sales Co., effective March 1.

Rated Teams Take Wins

Three of the Daily Standard Top Ten basketball teams posted easy wins last night. Second ranked Matthews rolled up an 81-34 win over East Prairie, third ranked Scott County Central beat back Bell City 81-57 and sixth ranked Charleston posted a 73-57 win over Jackson.

Matthews behind the four-man double figure barrage led by Leonard Bishop with 20 points had an easy time in rolling up its 25th win after it grabbed a 17-8 first period lead and held the Eagles under ten points in each of the four periods.

Paul Hale fired in 24 points in leading the Braves past Bell City last night for its 21st win of the season. Eleven men got into scoring column.

Lee Watson and Leonard Rampley scored 12 points each as the Cubs stayed within five points of the Braves in the first period but were out of the game midway in the second as they took a 42-24 half edge.

Charleston ran up its 17th win of the season by knocking off a stubborn Jackson crew behind Ruben Brown's 31 points.

Jackson stayed in contention until the final period, trailing by 35-31 at half and 51-43 going into the final period before putting it away with a 22 point final period.

Charleston's junior varsity ran its SEMO league record to 6-0 with a 70-46 win. Scott Central's JV unit won 53-42 and Matthews' scored a 66-54 decision.

CHAMROUSSE, France (AP) — Manfred Stiborski of Austria combines business with pleasure at the Winter Olympics.

He buys the special Olympic postcards issued for philatelists for one franc (20 cents), puts on special stamps costing 4 francs (80 cents). Then he stands on the street corner and sells the package for 10 francs (two dollars). Profits pay for his trip.

Depending on how well he does at the Winter Games, He may decide to continue his enterprise at Mexico City.

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Winter Olympics visitors will kindly stick to skating, skiing, hockey, bobsledding and tobogganing and refrain from back seat driving.

The French have pasted notices inside the vehicles used to transport athletes, officials and newsmen from place to place requesting that passengers "do not comment to the driver on his driving."

Matthews Edges Closer

Oran remained the number one basketball team in Southeast Missouri for the fifth week in a row. The first seven teams of last week's poll held their position. A major change took place in the bottom three as Howardville, Sikeston and Dexter fell.

The Eagles failed to collect all of the 10 first place votes by the Daily Standard sports panel of coaches after they were a unanimous choice last week, the first this season.

Voting was submitted Monday by the area coaches, who seemed to have scented Tuesday night losses by the three, who fell as Advance clipped the Hawks, Kennett the Bulldogs and Richland waylaid the Bearcats.

The only difference in this week's poll between the top seven teams is the point difference, which is tabulated by 10 points for a first place votes, nine for second and eight for third.

Matthews, which grabed two of the first place votes, closed within seven points of the top spot, accumulating 82 points to Oran's 89 and eight first place votes. Scott Central remained third with 70 points but was pursued closely by Notre Dame with 68.

A two-way tie resulted for eighth place and a pair of teams tied for tenth. Clarkton and Southland, seeded first and third in the Class S regional tournament collected 16 points each for an eight place tie. Doniphan and Neelyville gathered 13 points each for a tenth place deadlock.

The biggest test of the week will be Oran's plung into fifth ranked Charleston country Friday night, while seventh ranked Kennett goes to Mexico and sixth ranked Poplar Bluff will be at Sikeston.

Next week's poll will be the last one of the regular season. The final poll in which the top team will receive the Daily Standard Number One team trophy for 1967-68 will follow the class L regional.

Coffee Corner

—by Cherie—

Well, I come from a long-long line of Democrats, but I swear there's been too much inbreeding along the way, cause this Johnson child is the best example of an idiot and a hemophilian I've ever seen or read about in all those history books, (for those of you with no medical knowledge this term usually means a person whose blood won't clot, and they're called bleeders, course this case is slightly different in that it's him bleeding us to death instead of the other way round!) Why under the sun do we sit on our (in my case) larger regions and put up with this nonsense???

Did I hear someone mention the Pueblo last week, or did I just dream the Koreans had helped themselves to one of our boats, and then sat themselves smugly down on their Red backsides and laughed in our faces -- no, in Johnson's face -- if I had been in his position I'd have blown their chair right out from under them and watched to see if they'd stay on the floor or rise to the occasion -- something called "better judgment," (me little, you big), tells me they wouldn't have. I don't know, after all I'm only a woman, but still I don't think a woman alive today or anyday would sit by idly and let someone else remove her make-up for her. Oh fellows, you say women aren't fighters, -don't you believe it. They're the only species I know of that can fire a shot that will have repercussions clear around the world, and never pick up a gun! However, Johnson won't even parley verbally, just smiles and slowly drawls "everything will turn out alright," -- that native of Texas sure has lots in common with those bulls he raises!! I guess (Charles will be furious, but at least I got a little of this off my chest - couldn't get a lot off -- just ain't humanly possible), there isn't a lot we can do about it right now, but by gum, we can do something about it when we go to the election polls and, if you want your children raised in a democracy as good as your parents enjoyed, then get out and vote!

Everyone says and I quote, "I don't really like the way things are, but I just try not to think about it." End of quote, well brother you'd better, cause the world is run by thinkers!

I hate war -- but there will never be a time when the world will be without one - we're humans, everything fights from birth until death, and nations, after all, are only ruled by humans -- but let us at least admit we're at war and go about it in a dignified and humane way.

Let's get out of the ditches and the mire in Viet Nam -- if its war they're determined to have, than lets see that they have it, but with our boys standing upright behind a flag thats waving high-- not some lousy stinkin little police action that is allowing the Reds to slowly and painfully eat out our guts like the scavangers they are until we're to weak to do anything but let them move in for the final kill.

If my sons are going to have to go to war, and they will, all mothers steel themselves for that moment from the time the doctor places him in your arms and tells you it's a boy, at least let them go with their heads held high, and with the feeling their perhaps about to die for something that is precious enough to make that gift worth while.

Vote -- it is still up to you-the people - it won't be for long if we don't make ourselves heard, and known, and most of all felt, and believe me YOU can. You're reading me, I'm being heard, now its your turn--- raise and strike a blow for what we're losing --America "home of the free and land of the brave!"

MRS. SAM LOWREY, Charleston, serves a slice of chocolate pie to her son, "Sambo".

Mrs. Sam Lowrey Jr. Cooks Sews, Reads, Plays Bridge

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 73rd in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

By RUTH DILLENDER

CHARLESTON -- Mrs. Judy Lowrey says that being organized is important in running a household.

Mrs. Lowrey, her husband, Sam, Jr., and their son, Samuel Graves Lowrey III, live at 11 Willow Dr. Sam III, nicknamed "Sambo," is three and a half years old.

The family has lived in Charleston a year and a half. Lowrey is employed by the S&S Grain Company.

The family attends the Methodist church.

Mrs. Lowrey belongs to a women's bridge club and the couple belongs to a bridge club.

She says she likes to cook, a talent she learned through experience and using cookbooks after her marriage.

The homemaker sews making some of her clothes, reads and antiques furniture.

Lowrey's hobbies are playing golf, fishing and hunting. A treasure in the home is a dry sink that Lowrey refinished. Favorite recipes of the Lowrey family are:

BAKED WIENERS

1 medium onion, chopped fine and browned in two tablespoons butter
Add:
3 tablespoons worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ cup water
4 teaspoons lemon juice
½ cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 cup tomato catsup
Salt and pepper to taste

Simmer slowly for 30 minutes. Put 1½ pounds slightly cooked wieners in casserole. Pour sauce over wieners. Bake 45 minutes in 350-degree oven.

STRAWBERRY DESSERT

1 box vanilla wafers
1 carton fresh strawberries
1 box confectioners sugar
1 stick butter
1 pint whipping cream.

Crush box of vanilla wafers. Place ¾ box of crushed wafers in a two-quart Pyrex pan.

Mix sugar and stick of butter. Blend well. Spread over layer of wafers. Place carton of strawberries over mixture. Spread the unsweetened whipping cream over strawberries. Sprinkle remainder of crushed wafers on top. Refrigerate for 10-12 hours.

CHOCOLATE PIE

2 cups sweet milk
1 cup sugar
One third cup cocoa
One third cup flour
3 eggs, separated
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 large tablespoons Karo syrup
Pinch of salt

Mix sugar, milk, eggs, flour, cocoa, butter, vanilla and Karo syrup. Stir mixture over medium heat and let boil until thick. Pour custard into eight inch baked pie crust. Beat egg whites and add two tablespoons sugar. Beat until stiff. Add meringue to pie and brown.

SWEET-SOUR CHICKEN

½ cup butter
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
½ cup pineapple juice
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon salt
1 chicken, cut up

In small saucepan combine butter, sugar, pineapple juice, mustard and salt. Heat, stirring occasionally until butter melts and ingredients are well blended.

Place chicken in baking dish. Pour sauce over chicken and bake 1¼ to 1½ hours in 350-degree oven.

Gun Team Gets Used to Each Other

KHE SANH, Vietnam (AP) — The war, for Lance Cpls. Curry, Bennett and Farrah, is a log bunker eight feet square, plus one lovingly cared for machine-gun.

They don't much care for the location — hard by the barbed wire on the western edge of the Marine base at Khe Sanh. The surrounding jungle is controlled by North Vietnamese.

Life in the dusty, threatened fortress is hard on all. Curry, Bennett and Farrah are at the bottom of the heap. They get maybe six hours sleep a night, two C ration meals a day.

As best they can recall, they haven't had a shower in two months. Downwind, they smell a bit strong to visitors.

"What do you mean?" the team gunner, Johnny Bennett from West Palm Beach, Fla., asked with a grin. "We cleaned up yesterday. We shaved. Besides, we get used to each other."

Since last October the team has been together — Bennett, blond, smiling Larry Curry, from Concord, Calif., and husky, silent Michael Farrah, the team leader from Lakewood, Calif. Curry is 19, the others 20.

They operate a nasty black M60 machine gun; Farrah the leader, Bennett on trigger and Curry the "ammo humper."

Barely a year ago they were fresh out of high school. Bennett was a dropout — he hopes to get a diploma before he leaves the Marines. Now, they are the first line of defense, at least for about 30 yards, for 5,000 Marines.

By day they haul up ammo, dig a little deeper, snake out to repair cuts in the barbed wire, or read any tattered magazine that comes their way. They complain mostly about the big rats and wild pigs that bother them at night, setting off trip flares that make them jump and have to be replaced the next day.

By night they watch and sleep in the log bunker that has been their home for two months — eight feet on each side and four feet deep with enough sandbags on top to take a direct mortar hit but not much against a direct rocket or artillery shell.

At sundown they start alternating watches, an hour and 15 minutes for each man.

"We don't like to stay on watch too long," Farrah says. "We had rather swap around. If you stay on too long the weeds and bushes start to move around. We don't want to start seeing things."

Curry recalls that on his last five-day rest leave he went to Bangkok and saw a war movie, "The Dirty Dozen." Says it was great.

Now the outside world is far away and they snatch at bits of scuttlebutt. When the intelligence ship Pueblo was seized they thought the United States had declared war. They were overjoyed to confirm this wasn't so.

"We were afraid our enlistments would be extended," said Bennett.

Pilot Awarded 36 Medals Posthumously

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Chief warrant Officer Louis F. Keevan of Florissant, a St. Louis suburb, was awarded 36 medals posthumously Tuesday, including 33 Air Medals for heroism and three Distinguished Flying Crosses.

Keevan, the pilot of a light observation Army aircraft, was killed in Vietnam Dec. 4 while on a mission. His wife, Gloria, accepted the medals in ceremonies at the chemical company where she works.

The pilot served two tours in Vietnam and rolled up 3,300 hours in combat. He received a second Oak Leaf Cluster to the DFC for his voluntary actions above and beyond the call of duty while piloting a L-19 in support of Marine forces near Quang Tri.

Unidentified Girl's Burial Scheduled

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — Burial for an unidentified girl whose body was found last week in a weighted suitcase in Alton Lake will be held today in St. Charles.

So far authorities have no clues as to the girl's identity or cause of death, St. Charles County Corner Frank Amalong said Tuesday. He said the condition of the body made identification by comparing footprints with birth certificates impossible.

The girl was found last Thursday by two men.

Lack of Funds May Close Red Cross Office

KENNETT -- A lack of funds may cause the closing of the full-time Dunklin County Red Cross Chapter, it was disclosed today by officials of the county organization.

Facing a lack of donations, officials expressed concern that the full-time chapter, that serves as an important link between servicemen and their families, may be forced to shut down.

S. H. James of Clarkton, the chapter's fund chairman, said today that contributions to the county chapter are $1,000 less than last year despite an increased work load as a result of the Vietnam war.

James pointed out that $70 per month is spent on telephone calls and telegrams, arranging furloughs and leaves for servicemen in Dunklin county. In addition, some $500 a year is spent in loans to servicemen, of which only a small portion is repaid. Other expenses include $350 annually for rent, including utilities, and $1500 a year for the salary of a fulltime employe.

The county fund chairman said some $9,000 is required in donations to administer the local chapter and to meet its requirements to the national Red Cross.

James said today, "This year the local chapter observed its fiftieth anniversary and it would certainly be a serious blot on the history of Dunklin County to observe the anniversary by having to close the chapter."

James urged Dunklin countians to respond to his appeal and send donations to enable the county chapter to remain open. Donations may be sent directly to the Red Cross Chapter, Kennett, to James at Clarkton, or to Gene McKinney, president of the chapter, in care of Kennett National Bank, Kennett.

New Gas Line To Be Laid in Butler County

POPLAR BLUFF — The Missouri Utilities Company plans a new transmission line and distribution system to provide gas between Poplar Bluff and Fisk along Highway 60 East of the City.

The project calls for an expenditure of approximately $115,000.

The Bob Batten Equipment and Contracting Company of Poplar Bluff will start work on the project as soon as final authority is received from the Federal Power Administration.

3 Favorites Renew Impact On U.S. Religious Scene

By DAVID POLING

Catherine Marshall, Fulton J. Sheen and Norman Vincent Peale have made a surprising re-entry into the American religious scene. This has happened when so many theological commentators had written them off.

In their place a new breed had been installed and seemed to dominate thoroughly our mass media. Certainly no one can put down the amazing impact that Harvey Cox, Malcolm Boyd, Bishop James Pike and Carl Burke have had in the last two or three years. They have had their best sellers, Playboy interviews, television panels and all-night radio shows.

It seemed easy and proper to believe, therefore, that the religious personalities of a decade ago should be lost in the religious upheaval that has hit churches and our culture.

In the 1950s Bishop Sheen had his dazzling television show. Norman Vincent Peale's book, "The Power of Positive Thinking," crowded book stores and dominated the best-selling list. Catherine Marshall was able to convey the warmth and courage of her husband-preacher into "A Man Called Peter."

But over the years the mood changed and new faces, ideas and action appeared. Although not forgotten these three seemed to be out of it.

However in the last six months Mrs. Marshall, Peale and Sheen have returned in prominent and unpredictable ways. For instance, Mrs. Marshall's novel, "Christy," is suddenly looking down from high up on the best-seller list.

Bishop Sheen returned to national leadership last summer via his post in Rochester, his forthright stand on racial justice, the war in Vietnam and church renewal.

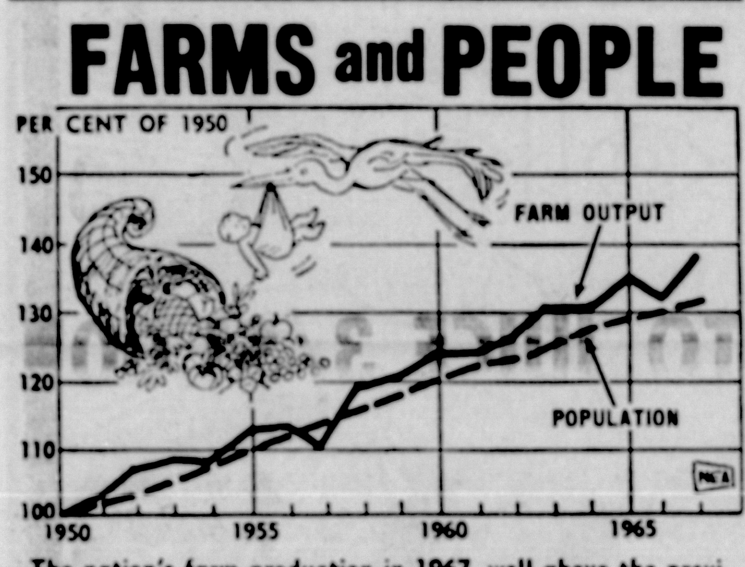
In the case of Peale, even his critics have grudgingly conceded that his presidency of the Protestant Council of the City of New York has been a good if not a great selection. Taking over when the council was crunched with leftover World's Fair debts and breathing hard with unpleasant divisions, Peale guidingly went to work. Money was raised, lay talent recruited, social outreach rejuvenated and a fresh spirit of co-operation recovered.

Perhaps none of the changes are more dramatic than Peale's New Year's message to the Protestant Council. It reflects the changes in his own life, an enlargement of vision and a serene mixture of negative and positive thinking.

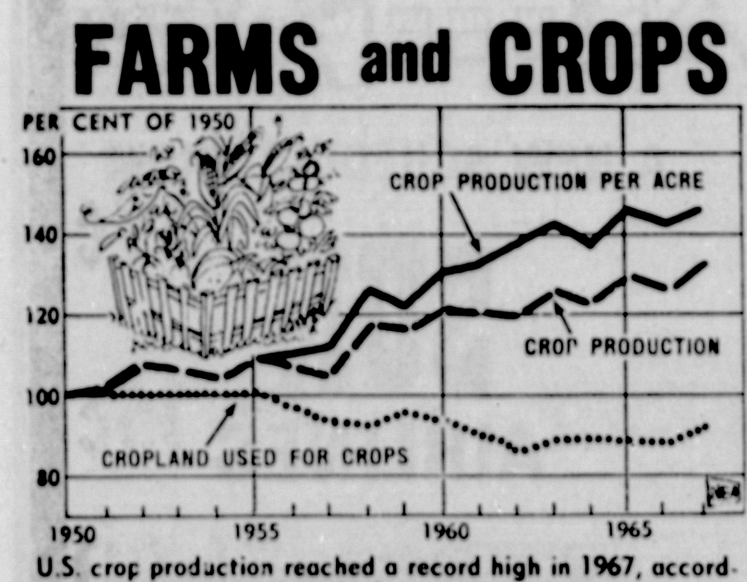
"I think there is no doubt that religion will be a failure in 1968 as it was in 1967. There are so many things that it doesn't do that it should do."

Then he looked to the brighter side when he added, "But religion has some successes to its credit also. The ecumenical spirit is growing enormously. Men of good will are increasingly and effectively active in behalf of justice and humanitarianism. Compassion, always the hallmark of religion, is being implemented currently in a major attack on ghetto conditions. Interracial relationship in the religious community has proceeded to the point where it has long ceased to be a novelty."

These three have changed as creatively as the world about them.



The nation's farm production in 1967, well above the previous year, keeps pace with increased population.



U.S. crop production reached a record high in 1967, according to Department of Agriculture estimates.

MINI-THERMOSTATS, about the size of an earring, get adjustment from an Essex Wire Corp. employe before being tested at temperatures ranging from minus 30 degrees to 500 degrees Fahrenheit. An IBM computer monitors eight testing stations, each of which can check 35 units at a time. The thermostats are used as switches in missiles and must be sensitive to temperature changes.

VERBLE'S T.V.

Washington Report

by Senator Symington

VIETNAM – Intensity of the attacks in Saigon and other cities and towns of South Vietnam last week once more emphasized the military as well as the political problems in that country about which I have expressed growing apprehension.

Because the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese utilized the TET holiday program in a manner comparable to the way they utilized the various bombing cessations of the past, only the extraordinary gallantry of our own forces as well as those of our allies prevented the development of an even more serious situation.

NEW VETERANS BENEFITS -- On a trial basis, twenty one-stop veterans centers, including one in St. Louis, are to be opened in various cities throughout the country.

Through these offices, veterans will be able to get personal counsel on opportunities and benefits to which they are entitled in such fields as education, employment, housing and health.

Experience at the first pilot locations will provide guidance on possible future centers. Participation by state and local officials as well as all organizations engaged in helping the veteran will be encouraged.

Also, during this past week, President Johnson submitted recommendations for increasing the maximum guarantee on GI home loans from $7,500 to $10,000; for added vocational rehabilitation to service -disabled veterans; and for a special program to encourage veterans to teach in deprived areas, and work in local police forces, fire departments, and hospitals.

NATIONAL FOOD RESERVE-- This past week, L. C. Carpenter, Vice President of the Midcontinent Farmers Association (MFA), Columbia, Mo., testified before the Senate Subcommittee on Agricultural Production, Marketing and Stablization of Prices of the Agriculture and Forestry Committee, in support of legislation to establish a national food reserve.

As Mr. Carpenter pointed out in his testimony, the reserves should be held to meet emergencies and should be insulated from the market in order to prevent any possible price-depressing influence.

I have long supported this type of program and hope that it will be authorized in this session.

$782.35 Franchise Paid by Cable TV

CARUTHERSVILLE --It was reported by Bootheel Video in Caruthersville that they are paying a semi-annual franchise of $782.35, which is based on the number of cable -television hook-ups that they make.

This is one of 2,000 cable TV systems across the country serving two million people.

College Freshman Assigns Term Paper Writing Job to Columnist

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a college freshman and when I tell you I am just barely making it, this is no exaggeration. I knew college was going to be rough but I didn't think it would take so much of my time.

I'm a little late with my psychology paper and I would certainly appreciate it if you would help me out. What I need is a rough draft, about 1200 words. I'd like you to list the principal causes for the deterioration of morality in our society. And please touch on the major problems of today's youth. Some authorities say the youth of today has more social pressures than the youth of 25 years ago. Please bring out this point.

Thank you from the bottom of my heart, Annie old girl. I knew you wouldn't let me down. You have a kind face. I'll bet you weren't bad looking in your day. ---EIGHT BALL

Dear Eight: So all you need is 1200 words -- sort of a rough draft? Are you sure you don't want me to write the paper and have it typed in finished form?

Look, Doll, every year about this time I get a few dozen requests from kids who would like me to do their work. I'll tell you what I tell the rest of them. Nobody wrote my papers when I was in school and I'm not going to write papers for anyone else. Haul your carcass over to the library (Slippery Rock has a fine one) and get to work, Bub.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 12-year-old boy who used to be happy and normal until my mother decided I should be a great piano player. I have been taking lessons for eight months and I hate it. Music is supposed to bring happiness but it is ruining my life.

I have thought of calling our doctor and asking him which is healthier for a growing child, to be in a stuffy house practicing the piano or to be outside playing ball in the fresh air. Somebody said that Erroll Garner still practices every day. If a great piano player like that has to practice every day after all the playing he has done, when does a person get good enough to relax? Please help me. --- NO MOZART

Dear No Mo: Erroll Garner doesn't practice to GET good. He practices to STAY good. Keep beating those ivories, fella, even though you hate it. It's good discipline and one day you'll be glad your mother made you stick with it.

Dear Ann Landers: Everytime you print a letter knocking "drop in" company I bless you for it. I noticed, however, some readers do not agree with you.

I have just figured out the rationale of the people who love drop-in company. They are the ones who like to do things the easy way. After all, an invitation carries with it an obligation to be well-groomed when you greet guests. One must have the house in order and refreshments on hand.

When people drop in, anything goes. Moreover the day is yours till the moment they arrive. What if the house is a mess? "I was cleaning the basement -- forgive the way I look. I haven't baked a thing this week but if you'd like a cup of coffee -- with cream, I'm afraid. . ."

When I entertain people I do it properly and I don't need any excuses for goofing off. --NO COP OUT

Dear No Cop Out: You sound like someone I'd like for a friend. I wouldn't drop in on you and you wouldn't drop in on me. Who was it that said high fences make good neighbors?

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Delta School Officials Will Discuss Merger

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Officials of the Delta public schools will meet Wednesday night with the Cape County board of education to discuss the tentative proposal of the Delta school district joining the communities of Advance and Chaffee to create a reorganized district.

The meeting will be held at the court house in Jackson. Representing the Delta schools will be Supt. Jordan Needham and members of the board of education.

School board members and administrators, together with a group of interested citizens from each of the three communities, met at Delta elementary school last week to investigate the posibilities and feasibility of creating a combined district.

H. D. Cook, a member of the state department of education and formerly school superintendent at Delta, was in attendance as a consultant.

It was agreed that officials of each district would convene with their county boards of education to get their reaction to the proposal.

Advance representatives will convene with the Stoddard County board of education; Chaffee with that of Scott county.

After these individual meetings, another joint session will be held, Needham said.

'Obscene' Literature Sales Protested

POPLAR BLUFF -- A delegation of about 20 men and women complained Tuesday night of what they called "obscene" literature should be stopped in Poplar Bluff.

Armed with tabloid publications available on news stands across the nation the group urged the council to ask store owners to remove the literature from their shelves voluntarily and to possibly pass type of ordinance that would control its sale.

After more than an hour of discussion with the council at the beginning of the meeting, the group retired to the police court room downstairs and elected six members to serve on a joint council committee. Selected were Mrs. Sylvia Seib, Mrs. Rose Shewmaker, the Rev. Gene Sells, Mrs. Doris Swartz, Ronald Little and Buddy Clark.

Named from the Council by Mayor Earl Porter to serve on the "decency promotion committee" along with the citizens were Aldermen Troy Pruett, Bill Marvel and Earl Anspach.

Mrs. Shewmaker read to the Council a letter from Gov. Warren E. Hearnes pledging his support of the activities of the citizens group.

The citizens distributed among the Council and audience a monthly tabloid publication entitled "It's Happening," published in Cleveland, and aimed apparently at Negro readers. The newspaper contained several articles on sex, with one of them circled for the close attention of the Council.

The owner of the news stand where the publication was sold said the tabloid mailed and others like it are from the Cleveland publisher. He implied that postal inspectors haven't questioned the sending of the publication through the mail.

Quang Refuses Aid to Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP) – The antigovernment Buddhist monk Thich Tri Quang refused to help the Viet Cong when they came to his Saigon Pagoda, informants said today.

They added he ordered the destruction of equipment which might be useful to the Communists.

The politically powerful monk, whose antigovernment activities have often led to speculation that he directly or indirectly supported the Viet Cong, was reported to have left the An Quang pagoda when the Viet Cong moved in last week.

James W. Wallace Chief Patriarch

James W. Wallace became the new chief patriarch of the encampment branch of the Odd Fellows Lodge Saturday night at the Odd Fellows Hall.

Cairl Woodruff of Dexter was elected high priest; Wm. Boos of Cape Girardeau was elected senior warden, and Carl Morrison of Cape Girardeau was elected junior warden.

A. L. Meisenheimer of Cape Girardeau became the new scribe for the encampment and Fred Forbis of Sikeston became the new treasurer.

The grand patriarch of the Missouri Grand Encampment, Gerald Goin of Chaffee, addressed the group.

The Prayer
from The Upper Room

O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our maker. For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. (Psalm 95:6-7)

PRAYER: In my moments of meditation and prayer, O God, separate me from the world of sense and time, and enable me to bow in Thy presence, with a humble, contrite heart flooded with the love of Christ. There speak to me and send me forth into Thy world to do Thy will. In the Lord's name. Amen.

Fewest Jobless In 15 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped to 3.5 per cent last month, the lowest level in almost 15 years, the Labor Department reported today.

Total employment at 73.3 million was at an all-time high for January and up 1.1 million from a year earlier, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The drop in the jobless rate from 3.7 per cent of the civilian labor force in December was due largely to a greater than usual decline in the number of women seeking works, Commissioner Arthur M. Ross reported.

The January labor force declined 1.7 million, and women accounted for half of the drop, the bureau said.

"It was apparently because of a decline in retail trade after Christmas," Ross said of the greater than expected decline in the number of women seeking jobs.

The 3.5 per cent jobless rate was the lowest since November 1953, when the same rate was recorded, the Bureau said.

The unemployment rate for women dropped from 4.1 per cent in December to 3.9 per cent in January.

The rate for men rose from 2.2 to 2.3 per cent while the rate for teen-agers declined from 12.8 to 11.3 per cent.

The jobless rate for nonwhite workers, mostly Negroes, declined more rapidly than that for white workers but was still double the rate for whites.

The rate for white workers declined from 3.3 per cent to 3.2 per cent and the rate for nonwhites dropped from 6.9 to 6.4 per cent.

Emerson Takes Motor Making Operations South

KENNETT -- Emerson Electric headquarters in St. Louis announced this past week that the company is ending all electric motor production operations in St. Louis and has transferred this work to plants in Kennett and Paragould, Ark.

John Mead, manager of the Emerson - Electric Manufacturing Co. plant in Kennett, reported that the transfer of the electric motor production operations to Kennett and Paragould has been taking place for the past several weeks, beginning late in November, and is now completed.

The local officials state that a number of new employes have been added to the Kennett plant to take care of the expansion operations.

Emerson, which began producing electric motors and fans in 1890, made its first move out of St. Louis in 1956. It opened a plant to prodce fractional horsepower electric motors at Paragould, Ark. to counter competition from giant producers. Additional plants later were opened at Russellville, Ky., Rogers, Ark. and Kennett.

The production workers at the St. Louis plant are being absorbed into the company's growing electronics and space division which operates in St. Louis.

Eagleton Hires Campaign Pro

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton has hired Matthew A. Reese, 39, of West Virginia to help him wrest the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator from Sen. Edward V. Long of Bowling Green.

Eagleton said Reese would start by organizing volunteers in St. Louis city and St. Louis County.

Reese engineered the late President John F. Kennedy's primary victory in West Virginia in 1960 and aided the Jackson County Committee for County Progress in upsetting political faction candidates there in 1966.

Reese's campaign style relies heavily on telephone campaigning and block-by-block organizing.

Mrs. Fisher, Editor at Cairo, Dies

CAIRO -- Mrs. Bess Brown Fisher, 82, editor, and widow of the late John C. Fisher, one of the founders of the Cairo Evening Citizen, died Tuesday at her home.

Mrs. Fisher was the daughter of Zorade L. Irvin and Alfred Brown of Thebes, where she was born. The family moved to Cairo when she was small.

She was an active member of the First Presbyterian Church.

In 1963, Mrs. Fisher was named Newspaper Woman of the Year of the Cairo Business and Professional Women's club, of which she was a past president.

In April of 1964, she was awarded the Master Editor's Award by the Southern Illinois University department of journalism in recognition of:

"Sixty years of constructive and faithful leadership of the Cairo Evening Citizen and 27 years as its editor and manager; her valuable support of civic and charitable campaigns in her community; her leadership in helping secure the preservation of Magnolia Manor and the establishment of Cairo Point-Fort Defiance State Park, and her wide range of activities for women in her community and state."

She married Fisher in 1931. He suffered a stroke and Mrs. Fisher took over active direction of the paper in 1934, continuing to manage it after his death in 1937 until ill health six years ago forced her semi-retirement.

She remained a guiding hand for her nephew, Martin Brown, until her death.

Mrs. Fisher was a member and past regent of the Egyptian Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution; the Cairo Woman's Club, charter member of the Magnolia Garden Club, and the Patron's Club of Magnolia Manor.

She has served as vice president of the Cairo Chamber of Commerce; Golden Book of Memories, and state public relations chairman for the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club.

Survivors are an adopted son, John Martin Brown, another nephew, Harrison L. Brown, Ariz.; two nieces, Mrs. Maybelle Mickelson, Westport, Conn.; and Mrs. Betty Azzouni, St. Louis; and a cousin, Mrs. Maude Michamp.

Services will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday in the Crain Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Roy A. Kale, a former pastor of the Cairo Presbyterian Church, officiating.

Burial will be in the old Thebes Cemetery.

Reduced Mortgage Payments Available To Reservists Called

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Housing Administration said Tuesday reservists and others called to military duty can make reduced payments on FHA-insured home mortgages if their military pay is insufficient to meet regular payments.

As explained to lenders by FHA Commissioner P. N. Brownstein, a lender can agree to temporarily reduced payments as long as the serviceman agrees to increase payments later to pay off the mortgage in its regular term.

Another Site For Commodities

CARUTHERSVILLE --The fire that destroyed the fair ground exhibition hall in Caruthersville suppulied a need for another location for distributing commodities. Pemiscot County Clerk, Harold Jones, reports that another site, the old Brown Shoe building, has been chosen and work has started on a portion of the building to put it in usable condition.

The fire in the exhibition hall destroyed almost $83,000 worth of commodities. Jones says that the day after the fire a truckload of commodities were shipped in and had to be taken to Portageville. He said that area people were able to get commodities in Portageville on one day last week.

The old factory has been deserted. According to Jones, work is being done on the office portion of the building. "We are just trying to fix it up so that we can use it at least temporarily," said Jones.

Kerner Not To Run

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Otto Kerner said today "I choose not to run" for re-election as governor this year.

Kerner, a Democrat, said he talked to Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago and President Johnson this morning about his plans. Both of them said they were sorry he was not running again, Kerner said.

Kerner, 59, is chairman of a new national advisory commission on civil disorders which President Johnson created last year.

He was elected governor in 1960, defeating the incumbent Republican, William G. Stratton, and was re-elected in 1964, defeating Charles H. Percy, who now is a U.S. senator from Illinois.

At a news conference today Kerner said he had no offers of any other jobs and it would be "presumptuous" to speculate about a federal appointment because "none has been offered to me."

Wesley Named To MOPAC Industrial Post

ST. LOUIS -- Jack K. Wesley has been promoted to director of industrial development for the Missouri Pacific system, it was announced by E. Smith Reed, assistant vice president-industrial development. He assumes a post that has been vacant following promotion of Reed.

Wesley joined MoPac in 1949 following his graduation from Washington University in St. Louis. He rose to assistant engineer in the transportation company's engineering department before joining the industrial development department in 1958 as an industrial agent.

Wesley was promoted to general land agent in 1961 and in 1966 was raised to assistant director of industrial development.

MoPac's industrial development staff has been responsible for attracting many new or expanded industries to the 12-state area served by the company, often combining its efforts with those of local and state industrial development grups and chamber of commerce organizations. During the past three years, 931 firms have constructed new or expanded facilities along MoPac's 12,000 miles of railroad at an estimated capital investment exceeding $1 billion.

Refugees Clog Center Of Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Tens of thousands of refugees, loaded down with household utensils and clothing, clogged the streets of Saigon today. They were fleeing from their homes in the southern part of the city, swarming into the capital's secure center.

The refugees claimed the police were unable to give them any protection against marauding Viet Cong bands.

"The Viet Cong came to my shop last night with cigarette lighters and rifles," a tearful shopkeeper said. "They were only kids, but they threatened me and burned down my shop. Now 500 homes are burned," he said, pointing to a block-long mass of ruins.

The shopkeeper said many people from the locality ran to the police headquarters 200 yards down the road, 'but the police never came to help, no one came."

"I have lost everything, 4 million piasters worth, and so has everyone else around me," the shopkeeper said as he raked through the smouldering remains of his shop.

Moving past him on the street were refugees in bicycle cabs, pushing their own bicycles, and on foot.

City officials report 47,000 refugees have been registered in official camps. The exodus from the heavily populated southern section is expected to push the total far above that.

Saigon and its suburbs have an estimated population of nearly 3 million people.

The 8th Precinct on the south stretches alongside Cholon, the Chinese section, and is a maze of canals and shacks. It was an area of panic today.

Traffic jammed the main bridge leading toward the center of town. Smaller bridges were under sniper fire.

Several blocks had been razed during the night, one by the Viet Cong. Residents said 500 yards of homes along one canal were destroyed by U.S. and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers that dropped napalm and fired rockets on suspected pockets of Viet Cong.

Air strikes continued today on the outskirts of the precinct, but no troop reinforcements had been sent in. All reserves were fully committed in other parts of the city.

Policemen in the area said the Viet Cong still held some parts of the precinct, but not enough troops were available to search them out.

The refugees were being sheltered in 33 hastily organized centers set up in schools, Buddhist pagodas, churches and hospitals.

Officials said the food situation in the city was serious but not yet critical.

Rice and other staples were available but prices were two to four times normal. There were considerable reserve stocks of rice in the city, but distribution was disrupted.

"It is not a crisis yet," said one U.S. official, 'but it is certainly a very serious problem. The food situation will stay tight for quite a while."

Robber Joins FBI List

WASHINGTON — Robert Leon McCain, who has participated in hundreds of Texas armed robberies and allegedly murdered a customer in a Dallas bank while committing a holdup, has been added to the FBI's list of 10 most wanted fugitives.

While two accomplices waited in a getaway car, McCain is reported to have entered the Inwood National Bank of Dallas on the morning of August 8, 1966, waving a blue steel revolver and wearing a grotesque rubber Halloween mask. After forcing bank employees to fill a sack with approximately $15,000, McCain reportedly began to flee from the bank when the sack split open and the loot dropped on the bank floor. A customer attempting to apprehend the robber succeeded in tearing off the robber's mask and shirt but was shot and killed by the bandit who escaped through a rear door while firing two or three shots at pursing employes.

On Oct. 11, 1967, following intensive FBI investigation, McCain was charged in a federal warrant issued at Dallas, with bank robbery.

It is alleged that McCain has also been an extremely active member of a Houston, armed robbery gang and has taken part in from 100 to 200 holdups in that area since 1964.

McCain has been arrested in several Texas cities since 1959 on such charges as burglary and theft, destruction of private property and robbery by firearms. He has been convicted of burglary.

He is a white American who was born at Marshall, Texas, on Oct. 31, 1941. He is 5 feet 9 inches to 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 150 to 155 pounds, has dark brown hair which is thick and wavy, brown eyes and a medium build. He has worked as a bricklayer's helper and laborer.

Known to be quick tempered and a glib talker, McCain reportedly enjoys bragging about his exploits, particularly when under the influence of alcohol or marijuana which he allegedly frequently uses. He is said to dress neatly and expensively, drink beer and bourbon, enjoy western music and dancing and patronize establishments featuring such entertainment. He has reportedly tern or mountain songs, is an avid fisherman and enjoys fine foods, being especially fond of steaks and Mexican food. McCain has allegedly used disguises and make - up during holdups.

He should be considered armed and extremely dangerous. Anyone with information concerning him should immediately contact the nearest office of the FBI, the telephone number of which may be found on the first page of local telephone directories.

Tito Peace Plan Would Allow Israel To Use Suez Canal

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — President Tito of Yugoslavia is trying to win President Gamal Abdel Nasser's approval of an Arab-Israeli peace plan permitting Israel to use the Suez Canal, informed sources report.

Egyptian sources said in talks Monday, Nasser insisted on settlement of the Palestine refugee problem as a condition for permitting Israeli ships to use the canal and ending the 20-year Arab state of belligerency against Israel.

Tito has called all along for Israeli withdrawal from captured Arab territory. However, he modified the peace plan he suggested last August by adding explicit proposals for Israeli use of the canal and an end to Arab belligerency. Yugoslav sources said the plan might be the basis for a new approach to the U.N. Security Council.

Six Per Cent of Cape College Students Receiving Assistance

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Of a little more than the 6,000 students attending Southeast Missouri State College today, about six and one half per cent are receiving financial assistance in some form. Financial assistance and the job of administering aid, through a financial aide coordinator, consequently, has become more than a cursory task these days.

Each week the coordinator's office receives requests for assistance. If your son or daughter lacks the necessary funds, or if you're a student and can't afford to go to college, here are some of the programs that could help you.

The Office of Education lists six programs through which students can receive aid. They include National Defense Student Loans, Guaranteed Loans for College Students, Guaranteed Loans for Vocational Students, Loans for Higher Education to Cuban Exiles, and College Work-Study and Educational Opportunity Grants. In addition to these six general plans, the Office lists 21 specific areas where students can acquire financial help. Among these include fellowships in education, study abroad, foreign language study, teacher exchange programs, fellowships in library and informational science, and undergraduate research training.

National defense student loans: Under this program (commonly known as NDEA) an undergraduate may borrow up to $1,000 each academic year to a maximum of $5,000. The repayment period and interest do not begin until nine months after the student ends his studies. The loans bear interest at the rate of three per cent a year on the unpaid balance, and repayment of the principal may be extended over a 10-year period.

If a borrower becomes a full-time teacher in an elementary or secondary school, or in an institution of higher education, as much as half the loan may be forgiven at the rate of 10 per cent for each year of teaching service. If the borrower is in the service, continuing his studies, is in the Peace Corps, or the Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), he need not make any payment on the principal or the interest.

Guaranteed Student Loans: Under this program the college need only certify that the applicant is in good standing in the college, is fully enrolled (15 hours or more) and can show need of financial assistance. The student then negotiates a loan with an eligible lending institution of his own choice. The loan, if granted, may be guaranteed by a state or private nonprofit agency which is backed up by a $120 million fund from the federal government. If the student's family income is under $15,000 a year, the government will pay the interest on the unpaid balance up to six per cent, from the start. The borrower pays 3 per cent after graduation.

A student may borrow for each year up to $1,000 for undergraduate study and up to $1,500 for graduate study.

Although the plan at first glance seems a blessing in disguise, financial directors throughout the country have been displeased as a whole with the manner in which the money has at times been loaned.

One of the most frequent arguments against the plan is that the loan, instead of being one of need has become a loan of "convenience". That is, in some cases, families who might not need the money, or at least part of the entire loan, utilize it for some other purpose than financial aid for their son or daughter.

In a recent newsletter from the United Student Aid Fund, the editor states:

With no consideration of whether the student and his family actually need a loan purely for educational purposes, and with most interest payments absorbed by the government, student borrowing can be expected to rise swiftly to $3 billion or more annually --student loans could soon amount to between a fifth and a third as much as all installment loans total today.

Also, many opponents of the program contend that much of the trouble lies behind the fact that the financial aids coordinator cannot exercise the power, as laid down by the law, to control excessive abuses of the program. For example, there have been instances when banks have increased the amount of the loan request over and above what the financial aids director had approved. One student requested a thousand-dollar loan. The financial aids coordinator believed his "show of actual need" warranted a loan of $700 to fulfill his college expenses for that year. However, the bank returned the approval papers to the college for a $300 increase at $1,000. It was found out later, after careful investigation, that the student had a $300 loan on an automobile with the lending bank which had not yet been paid.

Another argument against the loans arises from the same fact that financial aids coordinators don't have enough power under the guaranteed loan program. Often times students have no conception of what a loan really is . . . that is: borrowing money that eventually must be paid back, most of the time at an increase (because of interest) on the principal.

Many students, according to some aids directors, treat the loan as if it were a lump sum of money which just fell from the nearest willow tree adjoining the administration building. When these occasions happen, and it becomes clear that the student, and perhaps the parents, need some financial counseling, he is helpless -- under the guaranteed loan program -- to set a course of action commensurate with the type of counseling that is needed.

From the standpoint of the administrator, the guaranteed loan program sometimes lends itself to an effective bartering tool to attract students. Because, some contend, the money is so loose, there is great fluctuation in its use. Some colleges choose not to use it, because they believe that the student needs a college education and the necessary securities (food, shelter, and clothing) that accompany such a venture.

Other colleges, which perhaps are not so fiscal minded, choose to let the floodgates down. In figures compiled in 1965, the range of loan amounts in Missouri went from $74,447 at one state college to $633,359 at another. Most state colleges generally have about the same enrollments, give or take a few thousand students. Some believe this pattern of loan lending could lead to buying a student body.

Another disparity exists with standards. Many colleges require the student to be in good academic standing (C or better) before he can acquire a loan. However, in some states, as in Illinois, "There are no minimum academic requirements. If a student is eligible for enrollment, he is eligible for an Illinois Guaranteed Loan."

In a January editorial from the United Student Aid Fund newsletter, these facts appeared:

1. The Higher Education Act, which established the guaranteed loan program, set off a boom in such loans, as was intended. The annual volume jumped from $150 million in 1964-65 to more than double that amount in 1965-66.

2. A loan which the borrower pays no interest while in school and only 3 per cent when he gets out is attractive. Families could turn a profit just by keeping their own money in the bank at 5 per cent inererest while covering an equivalent part of their school expenses through guaranteed loans.

3. More and more students are borrowing automatically up to the full $1,000 limit. Example: at one school, $15 million was loaned in the academic years, 1960-66. In 1967 alone the same amount was loaned. In just 3 months in 1968, the same amount was loaned.

4. The Office of Education estimates that at the present rate of loaning in ten years the outstanding money will reach the 23 billion dollar figure, about a fifth of all the installment credit now outstanding in the entire country.

Guaranteed Loans for Vocational students: Students preparing for vocations at the postsecondary school level may apply for loans kinder the Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act of 1965.

To be eligible students are not required to have graduated from high school, but must be able to benefit from the course of instruction. They may borrow a maximum of at least $1,000 a year for two years with the exact limit varying from state to state. Recipients are required to carry at least one half a full study load at a business, trade, or technical school. The repayment period may cover from three to six years, but other provisions are similar to those for Guaranteed Loans which apply to college students.

College work-study: Grants are made to institutions of higher education to assist in the operation of work-study programs for their students who are in need of the earnings for part-time employment in order to pursue a graduate or undergraduate course of study. Students may work up to 15 hours weekly while attending classes full-time. During the summer or other vacation periods, they may work up to 40 hours a week. On - campus jobs include work in dining halls, laboratories, libraries, and maintenance facilities.

Educational Opportunity grants: While most federal assistance is in the form of loans or jobs rather than outright grants, this program provides direct awards for college students of exceptional financial need. Such students, if they should show academic or creative promise, may receive the grant through their college. These consist of from $200-$800 a year, and may be no more than one-half the total assistance given to the student by his institution. A recipient must be enrolled full-time and be an undergraduate.

Kennedy Raps Viet Lack of Allegiance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says the massive Viet Cong attacks on South Vietnam population centers reveal the "deadly apathy" of the South Vietnamese.

The Massachusetts Democrat, who has often criticized corruption within the South Vietnamese government, said the surprise Viet Cong attacks would have been impossible "if there were a population in South Vietnam that felt even a reasonable allegiance to its own government."

Kennedy, in a Monday speech to the American Advertising Association, added:

"Unless we assume that the enemy has the strongest internal security system known, it would have to be said that there was no one in those 26 cities and Saigon who felt compelled to inform the central government of the time and place of even one of these attacks."

As Kennedy spoke, Republican presidential hopeful Richard M. Nixon said in Wisconsin that the guerrilla attacks prove Americans aren't being kept fully informed about the war's progress.

Before the Viet Cong raids, Nixon said, there had been optimistic reports issued in Washington indicating the military operation was going well or that "peace was around the corner."

But meanwhile, Nixon added, "apparently our hard intelligence indicated that not only was the enemy capable of doing what it did in this last offensive, it is capable of doing it again."

He said the Johnson administration "would be much better advised to tell the American people the truth about the enemy's strength and the enemy's intentions, and at the same time make very clear that we're not going to cave in to this kind of assault."

Kennedy called for a new confrontation between this country and the Saigon government, saying the South Vietnamese leaders must be told to reform, to make their government "worthy of the respect of the people."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield endorsed Kennedy's call, saying he believes it's time for "very serious talks" along this line.

In other war-related developments:

— Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, deplored the publicized summary execution of a Viet Cong but suggested that rather than a cold-blooded murder, it was the product of "a flash of outrage."

In a letter to Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., Wheeler referred to the execution conducted by South Vietnamese police chief, Brig. Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan, who shot the Viet Cong to death in the street.

— Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara will appear before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Feb. 20 to review the 1964 Tonkin Gulf incident. The naval action involving American destroyers and North Vietnamese gunboats led to a major buildup of U.S. military operations in Vietnam. There have been conflicting versions of some aspects of the incident.

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri today announced that Roland Martin Brackney, son of S/Sgt. and Mrs. Jack C. Brackney of Dexter, Mo., is the fourth alternate for an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

Junior College Opponents Ask Ballot Test

POPLAR BLUFF - Opponents of Three Rivers Junior College are reported to be circulating petitions in an effort to place the issue of dissolution of the college district on the Apr. school election ballot in the four counties.

This effort to bring the proposed dissolution to a vote comes in the face of a recent Jackson county circuit court declaratory judgment which held that a junior college district cannot be dissolved under the proposed means.

The Three Rivers Opponents apparently are basing their latest efforts on a Dec. 2, 1966, Missouri Attorney General's opinion which said that a state law for dissolution of six-director (high school) districts also applies to junior college districts. That law states that 100 signatures from electors in the district is all that is required to place the dissolution issue on the school election ballot. A two-thirds majority vote then is needed to dissolve the district.

The Jackson County Circuit Court judgment, issued on Sept. 29, 1967, overturns the Attorney General's ruling, however. The judgment was never appealed and the time limit on such an appeal has expired.

The Jackson County decision came after a citizens group challenged the formation of the Junior College District of Metropolitan Kansas City. The opponents asked for and received the Attorney General's opinion and obtained the 100 signatures on a petition with the intent of placing the proposal on the next school election ballot.

Trustees of the Kansas City college then requested from a declaractory judgment in favor Circuit Court of Jackson County of the college.

The court ruled that the state law in question (162.451 of the Revised Statutes) does not apply to junior college districts organized under the statute which applies to the Kansas City District. Three Rivers organized under that same statute.

The Jackson County Circuit Court held further that the petition of 100 voters, "which purports to require an election on the dissolution proposition," has no legal effect. The judgment was signed by J. Donald Murphy, Jackson County Circuit Judge.

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) - Michael T. Hoag, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hoag of Hannibal, was killed Saturday night in a two-car collision near Lexington, S. C.

He worked in the communications section of the state prison at Columbia, S. C.

Two of his younger brothers, 13-year-old Joey and 11-year-old Billy Hoag, disappeared last May 10 and presumably were lost in a cave on Hannibal's south side along with 14-year-old Craig Dowell. The three never have been found.

Blaiberg's Hospital Stay Prolonged

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) --The hospital discharge of the only surviving heart transplant patient is being put off "for at least some weeks, maybe a month," his wife reported Monday.

Doctors at Groote Schuur Hospital had hoped Philip Blaiberg, 58, could go home in mid-February. But on Monday a hospital spokesman announced that fluid has formed again around the patient's transplanted heart.

"This is not giving undue cause for alarm," the spokesman said. "His condition at the moment is satisfactory."

Doctors were draining off the fluid with needles inserted into the sac surrounding the heart. Fluid was first reported to have developed nine days after the retired Cape Town dentist was given the heart of a South African mulatto Jan. 2.
